Pentagon budget approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate gave final approval Wednesday night to a bill authorizing most of the Pentagon's record $302 billion budget for next year.

The measure passed by a 92-3 vote after an amendment was included urging that the United States abide by the SALT II nuclear arms treaty and only scrap provisions of the pact in proportion to Soviet violations.

Earlier, the Senate approved the hiring of outside experts to advise legislators on the technical aspects of President Ronald Reagan's "Star Wars" anti-missile research program.

Reagan has reluctantly approved the Senate defense figure, although he had first sought a 5.9 percent hike over inflation as part of his defense build-up.

The Senate bill will have to be reconciled with whatever measure eventually passes the Democratic-controlled House, which is considering simply freezing Pentagon spending at current levels.

The Senate proposal would cut in half Reagan's overall MX missile program from 100 to 50 of the 10-warhead weapons, but grant his request for an end to the 16-year-old moratorium on building new nerve gas weapons.

The bill also would authorize the Pentagon to buy thousands of planes, ships, missiles, and tanks, but demand reform in spending that money in an attempt to curb waste and fraud.

House approves five sanctions against South African regime

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats overrode objections by the Reagan administration Wednesday and won overwhelming House approval of economic sanctions against South Africa in an attempt to pressure the white-minority regime to end apartheid, its racial segregation system.

The 295-127 vote, coming after Tuesday's approval of a similar bill by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, enhanced the chances that Congress will agree on a package to limit trade and investment with South Africa.

As soon as it became law, the House bill would ban:

- New U.S. bank loans to the South African government.
- New U.S. commercial investments in South African businesses.
- New imports of Krugerrand gold coins into the United States.
- Computer sales to the South African government.
- Sales of nuclear fuel, equipment and technology to South Africa.

House Minority Leader

Robert Michel, R-Ill., read letters from Secretary of State George Shultz and other members of President Ronald Reagan's Cabinet opposing the sanctions as harming U.S. business interests and the black South Africans they are intended to help.

Michel endorsed a Republican substitute to defer action and set up a three-year study to determine the best way to end apartheid. This was defeated, 310-108.

The sanctions "would remove one of the levers" of influence for change that the United States has been able to use most effectively in South Africa, where American companies employ about 55,000 blacks, said Shultz's letter.

The House, however, also rejected 345-77 a more stringent approach, calling for withdrawal of U.S. investments already in South Africa.

"We're still in bed with South Africa," said Rep. Ronald Dellums, D-Calif., sponsor of the divestment substitution.
