Students compete in tournament

By Eric Bottjer

Of the Emerald

Competition in the EMU Recreation Center recently took on an intense nature. For the past two weeks, students have been participating in a national collegiate tournament involving various recreational sports.

Roy Singer, a management intern at the Emu Recreation Center, organized this year's tournament. He said about 36 students entered and competed in eight different sports: chess, table soccer, backgammon, billiards, bowling, doubles table tennis and mens and women's singles table tennis. All competition is finished except for the billiards tournament, which should be through by Thursday.

Dexter Simmons, the EMU Recreation Center Manager, said some players were expected to win while other results were surprising. "Jay Collins, last year's champion, won the chess tournament again," Simmons said. "But Marcos Coleman, who won last year's local and regional backgammon competition, was upset by Kelly O'Neill."

Other winners included Andrea Spross in table soccer, Peter Lo in men's table tennis, Ann Miranda in women's table tennis and Sriram Natarajan and Imran Siddiri, who won in doubles table tennis.

These winners will take a bus to Pullman, Wash. Thursday to compete in regional championships. They will be joined by Darren Thompson, runner-up in the backgammon competition, Arnold Arizala, runner-up in men's table tennis and an eight member bowling team: Jim Johnson, Roy Singer, Tom Johnson, Dave Stevenson, Chris Fasset, Lisa Kosse, Virginia Olson and Kevleen Fennell.

The University competitors will challenge players from other universities in the Pacific Northwest. The tournament will run Thursday through Saturday. Transportation, lodging, and a meal allowance for players will be paid by the EMU Recreation Center.

The winners in billiards, bowling and table tennis will then compete in a national tournament at a, so far, undetermined site.

These annual local and regional tournaments were created by the Association of College Unions-International, an intercollegiate organization devoted to recreation. The University of Oregon has held the tournaments since 1950.

Sun Valley trip available in three different packages

The EMU Recreation Center is organizing a ski trip to Sun Valley over spring break. Three package deals are available: For $102, you'll get five days of ski lift tickets, free ski shuttle to and from lifts, and a discounted meal and refreshment package. For $202, you will get the above along with five nights lodging, daily maid service and free use of hot tubs and saunas.

There is also a $322 package that includes all of the above, as well as round-trip air fare and round-trip bus transportation.

Dexter Simmons, EMU Recreation Manager, is organizing the event. He says students making the trip are in "for a real good time. As many as a thousand students from the West Coast should be there," Simmons says. "So it should be pretty much a party atmosphere."

The sign-up deadline is next Tuesday. Those interested should contact the Campus Travel Center at 687-8456 or 342-3170.

Ski team results

After finishing the regular season ranked in the top five in the Southern Division, qualifying them for the regional meet, the Club Sports ski team took 18 members to compete in the meet held in Whistler, British Columbia last weekend.

Barb Rogers, the women's coach, said the team did not place well in Whistler but was happy taking as many as they did to the regional meet.

At the end of the regular season, the women's alpine and nordic combined team was ranked second in the division, while the men's alpine team was ranked first.
