

San Francisco still unbeaten in preseason

By The Associated Press

The last throw Tom Filer made Wednesday was his glove — into the Toronto dugout. It may be the last thing the young Toronto pitcher throws for awhile.

Filer, 7-0 in 11 games last year with the Blue Jays before a tender elbow put him on the disabled list three times, was called out of the bullpen to start the fourth inning against the New York Mets, his first appearance of the spring. Two batters later, he was gone.

One inning later, so were the Blue Jays. Two-run singles by Darryl Strawberry and Gary Carter in the fifth put the Mets ahead, 5-1, and they held on to beat the Blue Jays, 5-3.

Filer had no trouble with the first two batters he faced, but after one pitch to Danny Heep, he turned and walked dejectedly from the mound. Assistant trainer Tommy Craig and manager Jimmy Williams met Filer as he crossed the third-base line and, after a brief discussion, the pitcher flung his glove into the dugout.

Trainer Ken Carson said the injury appeared to be of a "muscular" nature, meaning Filer had either pulled or strained a muscle, and that it didn't appear to be a recurrence of last year's elbow problems. Filer wasn't as optimistic.

"Everything feels the same as it did last year," he said. "I just had a feeling coming out of the bullpen that something wasn't right. Then, when I got in the game and started throwing game-speed, I could feel a twinge."

Elsewhere, Frank White drove in three runs with a triple, homer and single, and Jamie Quirk singled home the winning run with two outs in the ninth inning as the Kansas City Royals beat the Baltimore Orioles 6-5 for their first triumph in four exhibition games.

Jeff Leonard drove in five runs with a homer and a double as San Francisco battered the Seattle Mariners, 13-2, for their sixth straight win against no losses. Scott Garrelts, a National League All-Star who is being switched from the bullpen to a starting role, pitched the first four innings for the Giants, allowing one run on four hits.

Joaquin Andujar, a late-season flop for the St. Louis Cardinals, made his pitching debut with the Oakland A's and worked three perfect innings in an 8-2 victory over San Diego Padres.

Mike Diaz doubled home two runs to cap a four-run ninth inning that carried the Pittsburgh Pirates to their first spring victory, an 8-4 decision over the Cardinals.

Mark Davidson hit a grand-slam homer and Kent Hrbek added a two-run shot to power the Minnesota Twins over the Houston Astros, 7-4. Hrbek's homer came off of Nolan Ryan.

Bruce Hurst became the first Boston pitcher to go four innings and the Red Sox scored three early runs to defeat a Detroit Tigers split squad, 3-2. Hurst allowed three hits and one run.

Scott Madison doubled twice as the rest of the Tigers scored eight runs in the ninth inning to defeat the Philadelphia Phillies, 8-2.

Tracy Jones had two RBI doubles as the Cincinnati Reds trounced the Chicago White Sox 8-2.

Joe Carter's RBI single with two outs in the bottom of the 10th inning gave the Cleveland Indians an 11-10 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Oregon's senior center, 6-foot-8 Jerry Adams, was chosen the Pacific-10 Conference player of the week for his outstanding performances in two Oregon wins over USC and UCLA this week. Adams scored 35 points and grabbed 25 rebounds in the Ducks only Pac-10 sweep of the season.

The Oregon basketball team held their annual basketball banquet Monday night and again Adams was the big winner. He won the team's most valuable player award, while Kenny Sprague was selected most inspirational player, and Keith Bladerston was presented with the Carl Greve Award as the top player in athletic and scholastic achievement.

Freshman tennis player Cynthia Grall was named the Nor-Pac tennis player of the week for winning her match against Idaho's Pam Waller. Grall defeated Waller, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4, to give the Ducks the deciding match in a 5-4 win over Idaho on Saturday in Eugene.
