

Ducks lose player, game

By Jeff Lutzky

The Oregon softball team lost twice Thursday in Stockton, Calif. — first losing a player, then losing a game. Oregon is now 13-24 on the season, and 1-7 in NorPac Conference play.

Before the Ducks' game with the University of Arizona Thursday, junior Kim Hedding became the latest in a long list of casualties when a short hop during infield practice broke the middle finger of her throwing hand.

"She's gone for at least three weeks, which is pretty much the rest of our season," Oregon coach Teresa Wilson said. "We just had to sort of wing it."

The lineup change moved sophomore catcher Paige Mays to right field, sophomore third baseman Susan Uhrich to second base, and freshman second baseman Kristl Okuhara to shortstop. The Ducks went on to lose to the Wildcats, 6-0, and garnered only one hit.

"We hit a lot of line drives, but the way our luck has been going they wouldn't fall," Wilson said. "The left fielder made a great play on a ball that could have been a double and their shortstop snagged a couple line drives. We had three or four balls that should have been hits, easily."

Arizona scored single runs in the first three innings off Duck pitcher Sue Voeller, before exploding for three in the seventh inning to wrap up the game. The first three runs were helped along by Duck errors which Wilson attributed partially to the new lineup.

"It was just a case of people not knowing where the other people would be," Wilson said. "We went over what to do on first and third situations, but it still resulted in a throwing error."

After the game, though, the result was the furthest thing from Wilson's mind. Knowing who will be playing where was paramount with two games today — one against the University of Pacific at 3 p.m. and the other against the University of California at Santa Barbara at 9 p.m.

Ducks not up to par at Stanford

By Craig Harris

Going into last weekend's Stanford Intercollegiate Golf Tournament, the Oregon golf team had only one thing on its mind — get a win over UCLA or San Jose State University, and wrap up a District 8 invitation to the NCAA championships.

That thought turned into a nightmare, as Oregon shot 100 over par as a team, and finished a low 14th in a field of 18. To make matters worse, both the Spartans and the Bruins, who were trying to knock the Ducks out of of the NCAAs going into the tourney, finished seventh and eighth.

Third-year coach Scott Krieger expressed his disappointment in his team's play, but he feels they can turn things around and wrap up a playoff berth.

"We played our worst tournament of the year, and we lost to all the teams we needed to beat," Krieger said. "But I feel this is only a temporary setback. If we play well in our last two tournaments, we'll be in the national tournament."

Regardless of their weak performance, the Ducks still hold a fifth place position in district standings, only one spot above the sixth and final national invitation.

"Even with this last tournament our position shouldn't change," Krieger said. "But it has been weakened. We're in that position of the old saying that we control our own destiny. What we need to do is put a couple of good tournaments together and we'll be in."

The Ducks will definitely have to improve on their first-day tourney performance at Stanford. Oregon turned in a team score of 502, and sophomore Croy Cochran shot a 97. Cochran regained his composure on the second day turning in respectable scores of 77 and 74. Even all-American candidate George Daves had an off weekend.

Oregon's number one golfer shot a 79 on Saturday, and then came back to post two 76's to give him a 231 total for the weekend. Krieger believes the inclement weather had an impact on the team's performance.

"The first round was a disaster, the wind was blowing and that hurt us," Krieger said. "We were not ready for the wind. We get a lot of rain, but no wind."

Oregon's other golfers couldn't do much better. Rob Huff finished with a 233, Tony Joyner with a 234, and Steve Rintoul and Tim Hval shot a 237 and 240, respectively. Oregon's total team score was an incredible 1,165.

Going into the weekend, USC, Fresno State, and Arizona State were all favored to win. To no one's surprise, the respective teams finished first, second and third. A surprise to Krieger was the performance of California-Santa Barbara.

Usually a mediocre team, UCSB finished sixth, and 13 strokes ahead of the Ducks.

If there is any consolation for the Ducks, it's that USC finished with a team score of 1,124 — 59 strokes over par.

"It's kind of disappointing that they outscored us by so much since we've been closing in on them all year long," Krieger said. "We only lost by five and nine strokes in the last two tournaments we played them."

Oregon will be playing in one more tournament before preparing for the Pac-10 championships. Krieger believes his club has a very good outside chance to win the conference crown, but believes the pre-tourney pick to win it will have to be USC and Arizona State.
