The week we decided to start a family.

Once upon a time, happy families were all alike.

Happy.

But today even the happy family isn't the same. Today the family has become a barometer of the social, psychological and sexual upheaval that's shaking up our nation.

From every family everywhere comes the same question: what's going on here anyway?

Which is why Newsweek started its family section. A special department reporting on this most battered yet resilient institution.

You'll find our family section is about the new meaning of family. The married family. The unmarried family. The divorced family. The remarried, remolded, rebrothered and re-sistered family.

No newsweekly is better qualified to report on the family, because no newsweekly deals with social issues with the insight of Newsweek.

We have the awards to prove it. More than any other newsweekly.

Our probing stories on What TV Does to Kids, Stolen Children and The Single Parent were painful but pertinent. Hard but helpful.

Newsweek's coverage not only tells you what's happening but often suggests what you can do about what's happening. To your child's education. To having a child. Or not. To growing up gay. To getting off drugs. To getting on with your life. To living too long. The family just isn't what it used to be. But whatever it's become and wherever it's going, from now on you'll find out in Newsweek.

Newsweek

Why it happened. What it means.
