For 25 Years, we've been exporting America's most valuable resource.

The men and women of the Peace Corps. Dedicated volunteers who help people in developing countries live better lives.

It's tough. And it takes more than just concern. It takes motivation. Commitment.

But for 25 years, being a Peace Corps volunteer has been a chance to stop dreaming about a better world and start doing something about it.

Envoy sees freed hostage

LARNACA, Cyprus (AP) — Anglican Church envoy Terry Waite, resuming a shuttle to free foreigners kidnapped in Lebanon, re-emerged Sunday after dropping out of sight for two days.

Waite, 47, boarded a U.S. Blackhawk helicopter at the Larnaca airport Sunday and flew to Beirut, the capital of Lebanon, where he met with freed American hostage David Jacobsen.

"We hope very much with the help of some friends here we can secure the release of other hostages," Waite said, without elaboration. "Our main hope now is to secure the rapid release of U.S. and other hostages."

Hasenfus unsure of link

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Captured American mercenary Eugene Hasenfus acknowledged Sunday he had signed a document, described as a confession to charges that he was involved in an air operation dropping weapons and other supplies to U.S.-backed rebels.

However, he took exception to a section of the document dealing with alleged Central Intelligence Agency involvement in his activities.

"I do not have the direct knowledge to definitely, personally know that," he said through an interpreter.

Reagan thanks clergyman

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan on Sunday thanked an Anglican Church envoy and unnamed others who helped arrange the release of hostage David Jacobsen, but he refused to identify the "sensitive channels" the United States is using to gain release of other American hostages in Lebanon.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes, while refusing to say what the United States had done to bring about Jacobsen's release, insisted there had been "no change in U.S. policy" of refusing to make concessions to terrorists or ask other countries to do so.

New radar sees Stealth

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union have the means to track "Stealth" aircraft that are supposed to be made invisible from radar by high-tech construction techniques, U.S. officials say.

But these officials say such detection poses no threat because of the way the Stealth aircraft would be used.

Since the Pentagon does not envision using its bombers for surprise, first-strike raids, it is not concerned about detection by the new radar, called Over-The-Horizon-Backscatter, or OTH-B.

Nuke auditor lauds probe

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) — The Rockwell Hanford auditor whose critical reports of problems at two plutonium plants run by Rockwell on the Hanford nuclear reservation helped lead to a Department of Energy probe says DOE investigators are being very thorough.

"The DOE guys are digging into every nook and cranny that applies to my findings on the audits," said Casey Ruud, who is among 16 investigators studying the two plants in the current investigation. "I think the results will show my audits were very accurate."

Overdose victim found

PORTLAND (AP) — The body of a woman who apparently died of a drug overdose was recovered hours after it was spotted by a passing motorist who thought it was a mannequin left by a Halloween prankster, police said.

Police spokesman Henry Groepper said the body was found Saturday about two-tenths of a mile from the St. Johns Bridge.

Groepper said a driver saw the body at about 1:30 p.m. but did not report it to police for four hours, believing at first that it was a mannequin.

An autopsy conducted Sunday indicated that the woman apparently died of a drug overdose, the State Medical Examiner's Office reported.

No identification was found on the body, said Groepper. The woman was believed to be 25-35 years old.
