

ISLAM & WOMEN'S LIBERATION

BY:

MRS. AMINA ASSILIMI

The Muslim Students Association invites you on

Thursday, 6th November
7:30 PM
Geology 150

Reception follows

Co-Sponsors: Anthropology Dept., Campus Interfaith Ministry, College of Business Admin., Cultural Forum, International Studies, Religious Studies Dept. & Women's Studies

Election '86

Photo by Michael Wilhelm

Democrat Neil Goldschmidt did some last-minute campaigning at the Fifth Street Public Market on Tuesday morning. He went on to defeat Republican Norma Paulus in the race for governor.

Goldschmidt

Continued from Page 1

Goldschmidt led Paulus late Tuesday evening in the hard-fought Oregon governor's race with 52 percent of the vote to Paulus' 48 percent.

Election experts speculated that Paulus may wait out the night in anticipation of closing the margin with returns from Oregon's outlying and rural counties. It was also speculated that Paulus may be hoping to close the gap with returns from the strong absentee ballot campaign waged by Republicans.

Appearing before a group of supporters at his campaign headquarters in Portland, Goldschmidt stopped short of declaring victory, although he said the "Oregon Comeback," his plan for economic revival, had begun.

Goldschmidt took 55 percent of the vote in Lane County to Paulus' 41 percent. A surprise result came in the returns from Paulus' home of Marion County where Goldschmidt was leading Paulus by 7 percentage points late in the evening.

At the Eugene Hilton victory party of Goldschmidt supporters, his Lane County campaign co-chairwoman Dottie Chase said local Goldschmidt supporters were ecstatic about the evening's returns.

"I think it is an indication that the people of Oregon want a change," Chase said. She said the Goldschmidt victory coupled with the continuation of Democratic control in the state House of Representatives would mean a shorter and smoother legislative session in the coming year.

In his jubilant late-night victory celebration at the Eugene Hilton, DeFazio credited his cheering supporters for defeating the powerful campaign of Long.

"The Republican national committee came in with lots of money," DeFazio said of his campaign against Long. "But Oregonians didn't buy it."

"This proves you can still win in an issues-oriented, grassroots campaign," DeFazio said.

With most of the 4th District precincts counted, DeFazio was leading Long 57 percent to 43 percent.

Long held off from conceding the race. But he noted, "It's most difficult for a Republican to go into the 4th District race with a 14 point disadvantage and not live in Lane County."

DeFazio was enthusiastic about the news that Democrats had taken control of the U.S. Senate.

"Reagan's policies were dramatically repudiated," he said.

In other Oregon races for the U.S. House of Representatives, incumbent Democrat Les AuCoin defeated Republican Tony Meeker in District 1, with 60 percent of the vote. Republican Bob Smith defended a challenge by Democrat Larry Tuttle in District 2, with 61 percent of the vote.

In District 3, incumbent Democrat Ron Wyden triumphed over Republican Tom Phelan with 86 percent of the vote. And incumbent Republican Denny Smith defeated Democrat Barbara Ross in District 5, with 59 percent of the vote.

Packwood said he would still be able to help Oregon even though the Democrats took control of the Senate on Tuesday.

Packwood defeated Bauman 62 percent to 38 percent.

"I can't help but be grateful at the size of the margin the Oregon electorate has given me," Packwood said.

Voting on one of the most complex and emotional ballots in Oregon history, the majority of Oregonians chose to support the status quo.

Ballot Measure 5, the Oregon Marijuana Initiative, which asked for legalization of marijuana for personal use by adults, received a resounding no from the state's voters. The OMI was losing by a 3 to 1 margin with about 60 percent of the state's precincts counted Tuesday.

"We got a wonderfully large number of votes," said Richard Sharvy, Libertarian party candidate for state House District 40, and a strong supporter of the marijuana initiative. "Nobody expected it would pass the first time. For 30 percent of Oregonians to vote for it, right in the middle of the biggest wave of drug hysteria ever, is a compliment to the tolerance and intelligence of 30 percent of the people in Oregon," Sharvy said.

Ballot Measure 6, which called for an end to most state-funded abortions, was defeated by Oregon voters after a long, expensive and emotional campaign.

Oregon's three ballot measures aimed at stemming nuclear arms production and managing nuclear waste

Continued on Page 5

Wednesday, November 5, 1986

KRVM WELCOMES

JONATHAN RICHMAN AND THE MODERN LOVERS!

FRIDAY
NOVEMBER 7
EMU Dining Room

$5.00 advance tickets $6.00 day of the show

Tickets available at Earth River, Everybody's, and EMU Main Desk
Produced by the Cultural Forum

The Museum of Natural History is Having a Gift Shop Sale... (and prices are slashed to the bone!)

From October 28 through November 8, gift shop prices will be discounted 10 to 30% on special treasures from around the world. But you'd better hurry... At these prices, the selection is sure to become extinct!

The Museum is located on campus in the Science Complex, under the breezeway between science I and II. Open noon to 5:00, Tuesdays through Saturdays.