In spite of lingering memories of Idaho State in the first half of Saturday's game with Seattle-Pacific University, the Ducks came out in the second half and did what they were supposed to do — beat a Division II club, 85-68, in McArthur Court.

"At the half we were talking about what happened against Idaho State, and we said we didn't want it to happen again," said center Sven Meyer.

Guard Anthony Taylor agreed that "everyone kind of looked back at the Idaho State game."

The Ducks played a sluggish first half reminiscent of their 62-57 loss to Idaho State earlier in the season, while the Falcons played tough with hopes of winning their first game ever against a Pacific-10 Conference opponent.

Seattle-Pacific struck first when it converted two free throws after a Meyer foul, the first of a fiasco of fouls that would give Oregon fits throughout the half and most of the game.

The two teams exchanged the lead four times in the opening six minutes before the Ducks finally established control.

With the score even at 11-11,

Greg Senior hit a turnaround jumper, David Girley canned a three-pointer and Keith Balderston connected on a 17-foot jumper as Oregon took the lead for good, 18-11.

Seattle-Pacific chipped away at the margin, but the Ducks held on to take a 36-31 advantage into the locker room at the half.

The Falcons took advantage of 13 Oregon first-half fouls and made 16 of 19 from the charity stripe to keep them in the game.

"We didn't play very aggressive in the first half, or with
