Ducks down Cal, 86-73

The Oregon men's basketball team played a near flawless second half to register a come-from-behind Pacific-10 Conference victory over the University of California at Berkeley, 86-73, Thursday night before a frenzy crowd of 7,948 in McArthur Court.

"The second half was just outstanding," said Oregon coach Don Monson. "I don't think I could have asked them to play any harder — offensively or defensively. We took it to them, and we didn't make many mistakes."

"The fact that we could come back and play such an outstanding second half shows that we are playing with more confidence," Monson said.

The confidence showed as the Ducks shot a sizzling 61.5 percent (16 of 26) from the field in the second half, while playing a tenacious defense that forced Cal to shoot a meager 35.3 percent.

Oregon trailed by seven at halftime, 42-35, after "standing around and letting (Cal) flat take it to us in front of a great crowd," Monson said. "I just felt they outplayed my kids — they were more aggressive, and they showed they wanted it more."

But the Ducks proved that they wanted the game even more when they stormed out in the opening minute and a half of the second half to score three straight field goals and pull within one, 42-41. Cal signalled for a timeout, but Oregon's momentum was not to be interrupted in the least.

Oregon center Sven Meyer got the hot hand and hit four consecutive shots to give the Ducks a 49-46 lead at the 13:23 mark.

The two teams exchanged the lead twice before Oregon seized it for good, 60-59, on Anthony Taylor's three-pointer with 6:53 to play.

The Bears made a run at the Ducks, but David Girley canned two three-point buckets to erase any of Cal's hopes.

Meyer singled out the Ducks' intensity level as the key to the win: "We played much more intense in the second half," Meyer said. "When it's a close game, the first three minutes of the second half are always really important."

Girley reiterated Meyer's thoughts about the intensity of the second half. "We had tenacity and grit, and we didn't want to let our fans or ourselves down."

And that they didn't. After a shaky first half, Ducks fans were treated to a clinic of sorts in the second half. The fans showed their appreciation by rocking the "Pit" with their stomps and yells.

The victory extended Oregon's Mac Court winning streak to eight. The Ducks are 9-1 at home, having lost only to Idaho State in its opener.

On a night when Taylor, who had averaged 21.4 points a contest prior to the game, was held just 13 points due to a hounding Cal defense, the Ducks received big help from the other four starters.

Girley led the way with 23 points on eight of 12 from the field, including five of six from three-point range. Meyer got back on track after struggling offensively of late, pouring in 20 points, 14 of which were crucial second-half points. Forwards Jesse Nash and Keith Balderston added 15 and 10 points, respectively.

The victory improved Oregon's record to 11-8 overall and 5-5 in the Pac-10, while Cal slipped to 13-9 and 6-4.

The Ducks will be looking to make a sweep of the visiting Bay Area schools Sunday when they host Stanford University at 3 p.m. in Mac Court.
