

risk appraisals and mini-workshops, the program's success will be studied and evaluated.

Personal evaluations by participants will be considered during the evaluation process, Jacobsen said.

Participants will be able to take existing fitness classes or special fitness classes for employees only and include options such as aerobics, the noon walking club, weight training, and selected activity classes in the Shape/Service Physical Education Program. These include regular graded student classes as well as classes open to the community.

classes on Wednesday afternoons featuring different guest speakers on topics such as leadership styles, interpersonal communication and public speaking. The classes are arranged by IC Advisor Neil Dorow and Panhellenic adviser Ann Berner.

Panhellenic Vice-President

Michelle Castano believes the new social rules may be enforced by using tribunal effectively. The new social rules forbid sororities to purchase alcohol for fraternity functions and require two sorority members to refrain from alcohol consumption at every party.

The tribunal will be composed of a select group of sorority members who will travel to each function on the weekends to ensure rules are being enforced.

"People are taking to the new rules," Castano said. "Our biggest complaint is that sororities aren't paying enough money for the fraternity functions."
