Festive clothing makes a great valentine's gift, as 4-year-old Willow Norton demonstrates in her heart-decorated sweat shirt.

Find the distinctive valentine gift at the Fifth Street Public Market

Looking for a Valentine's Day gift that is exciting and different, one that is creative and beats the dullness of traditional candy and flowers? The Fifth Street Public Market is the place to look for gifts extraordinaire.

The Paper Traders Annex, located at the top of the market, has a ceramic Betty Boop candle that sells for $28. It has everything for the perfect Valentine's Day party including reusable ice cubes in the shapes of pink and red hearts and heart-topped cocktail stirrers.

For the avid car fan, the Annex has a pink 1955

Thunderbird model that sells for $44. And for holiday fashion, the shop sells jumpsuits by Paris Blues in pink and red. Sue Ryan, one of the store's buyers, said, "We strive for fun and look for the unusual."

If the way to your sweetie's heart is through his or her stomach, The Marketplace Gourmet has a variety of valentine kitchen accessories. An added touch to any drink are heart-shaped ice cubes, made from heart-shaped ice trays, available for $2.75. There is an apron with a teddy bear and hearts that matches kitchen towels and potholders.

Mugs are also a popular gift item as well as heart-decorated white plastic cups. The Gourmet also has a teapot with a cream pitcher and sugar bowl. All are red with white hearts and are sold separately.

Make your valentine's heart soar with a valentine kite, shown here by Lauri Seubert, owner of Kites and Other Delights at the Fifth Street Public Market.

For the scholar, Marketplace Bookstore sells a variety of Valentine's Day books. Some of the more interesting titles are "Never Make Love in a Suit of Armor" by Michael Green and "Love Strokes: Handwriting Analysis for Love, Sex and Compatibility" by Harriet Surovell. There is also a book called "Letters From the Heart: An Alphabet of Affection." Each letter of the alphabet has an affectionate word beginning with that letter.

Deviating a little bit from the norm of traditional flowers, the Fifth Street Greenery has mugs with cutaway hearts going through the mug and filled with roses, daisies and a heart ornament, selling for $12.95. The shop also sells tall heart-shaped vases that say "I Love You Mom."

Do you make your valentine's heart soar? Kites and Other Delights is the answer. Owner Lauri Seubert sells heart kites for $12, but she says the big sellers this year have been windsocks in the shape of flowers or "the flower that never dies."

Paper Traders also has some unique gifts. For the passionate couple, there is edible underwear for both men and women. On the lighter side, Paper Traders sells valentine messages in a box and pink champagne bubble bath with real California champagne in it.
