per $1,000 of assessed property value. The funds will be used to run an inmate work camp, additional community corrections space, a mental health emergency unit at the jail and an alcohol and drug-treatment unit.

Eugene voters also approved a one-year levy of $199,500 for downtown parking. The measure authorizes additional taxation of property owners in the Downtown Development District and will not affect other parts of the city.

The measure passed, 11,685 to 7,259. Approval of the levy enables the Downtown Commission to continue with the free parking program as well as provide downtown marketing and business recruitment.

Springfield voters narrowly defeated the Private Investment Incentive Plan, Measure 51. With all 19 of 23 precincts reporting, PIIP was going down 1,353 to 1,234.

The PIIP plan would have offerred incentives to business or industries considering locating in certain districts in the Springfield area.

The program involved a tax increment financing plan, which would have increased property taxes slightly for property owners in one of the 11 taxing bodies with boundaries overlapping those of the renewal district.

City officials had hoped the PIIP program would enable Springfield to compete with cities of similar size in attracting new business developments.

Measure 20-03, authorizing a four-year, $2.9 million levy for capital improvements at Lane Community College was approved by voters in Lane County, and portions of Linn, Benton and Douglas counties. With all 180 precincts reporting, the measure passed, 20,778 to 16,639.

Voter approval of the LCC bonds authorizes the college to spend $725,000 per year for upgrading the facilities and equipment at the 20-year-old campus.

Voter turnout for the election was fairly low at about 26 percent of registered voters.

March elections generally have a low voter turnout according to Dave Spriggs of the Lane County Elections Division.

"Voter turnout in a March election can range anywhere from 7 percent to 27 percent," he said.

"We weren't put together to form a pretty ticket," Frichette said. "We're running together because we work together so well."

The ticket's platform includes issues varying from the maintenance of the student-controlled ASUO health insurance to lobbying for a revision of independent student status for financial aid purposes. They also hope to work for substance abuse education, improved child care, minority recruitment and an executive rule outlining the ASUO appointment process following the same guidelines as the hiring process.

child-care facilities, improved public safety, continuing support for affirmative action legislation and fair representation for minority students.

Lachkar and Mooney are not overly concerned about the recent formation of political organizations aimed at ending SPA's dominance of student government.

"We hope to educate everyone on what we are and what we've been doing," Lachkar said. "It is important that we tell how students can benefit from SPA and our administration."

"SPA is a force to be reckoned with," Mooney said. "And in the democratic process, whatever students decide at the polls is what they want."

SPA will be announcing a full slate of candidates for elected positions early next week. The primary elections will be held April 15 and 16 followed by the general elections on April 22 and 23.

UO REGISTERED STUDENTS

Because the Oregon Daily Emerald Publishing Inc., is an optional student fee, The Oregon Daily Emerald provides students who have paid unwillingly for their daily newspaper a refund.

Students who do receive this refund must sign an affidavit stating that they will not obtain an ODE throughout Spring term 1987.

Wednesday April 1, 1987 through Tuesday April 7, 1987 we will refund $1.99 to any subscriber who has paid their fee to the ODE unwillingly. Refunds will be given from room 300 of the Erb Memorial Union during business hours of 9-5pm.

But remember: The small cost of an Emerald subscription — 3.23¢ per issue per day — buys 3 months of news about your education, your administration and your weekend entertainment.
