

Greeks endorse Brooks/Gaffney ticket

The Greek Endorsement Committee on Tuesday announced it was endorsing Kasey Brooks and Karen Gaffney for ASUO president and vice president.

The committee decided on Brooks and Gaffney because they offered the best representation for Greeks, said Christopher Piper, the committee's publicity coordinator.

Piper also cited the Brooks/Gaffney ticket as providing the best means for student outreach, the best methods of looking at campus issues and its innovative ideas for getting Greeks involved in the government process.

Brooks and Gaffney already have been endorsed by Concerned Students for Responsive Leadership, a recently established political party on campus.

The Greek Endorsement Committee will announce its endorsements for the five available Incidental Fee Committee positions today.

Students for a Progressive Agenda is expected to announce its endorsements for those positions today as well.

Many of the students at the meeting said they didn't oppose the idea of having a research park, only the chosen location.

The real complaint expressed by the students, however, concerned the lack of student participation in the decision-making process surrounding the research park. At one point during the meeting, Commissioner John Van Landingham asked Don Corson, who spoke on behalf of the Riverfront Research Park Commission, what the level of student representation was on the commission.

Corson said there were no students, but that students provided a "legitimate source of opinion."

The Planning Commission will hold a public forum on the Riverfront Project on April 16.

Besides meeting on Thursdays to march in the square, the mothers attempt to locate the children of the disappeared and reunite them with grandparents and other relatives. The movement has spread to other countries where similar disappearances have taken place.

Epelbaum's visit to the United States is sponsored by the Third World Women's Project of the Institute for Policy Studies in Washington, D.C. Her presentation at the University is co-sponsored by the Council for Human Rights in Latin America, University Peace Week and Women's Resource and Referral Services.

affect the student population. If elected, she plans to continue work with the University of El Salvador and on the South Africa divestiture suit, she said.

Mooney hopes to make student government better and stresses the issue of student empowerment.

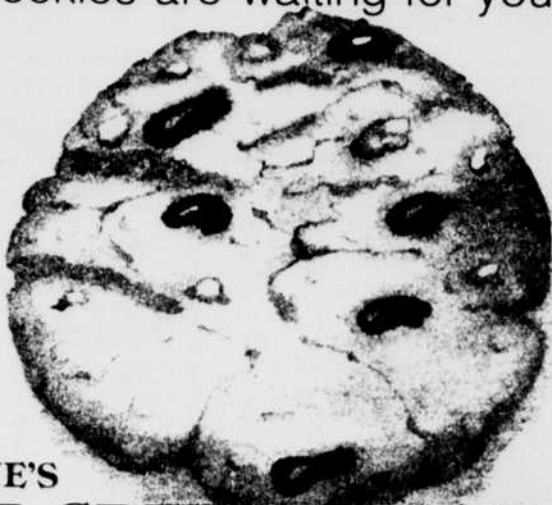

"We need to preserve a powerful student government," she said. "We also need to defend student rights."

In commenting on the presidential/vice presidential race, Mooney said the clearly diverse ticket is an asset to the whole process.

"It's different this year in that more students are involved, and more seem to care," she said. "That's what the democratic process is all about, giving people choices."

Oregon Daily Emerald
Ms. Susan Thelen
Advertising Manager
(EM)
Eugene, OR

Dear Ms. Thelen:

In our everyday hectic life we sometimes forget to stop and say thank you for a job well done. I would like to take this opportunity to say thank you to you and your staff.

Apple Computer is very pleased with the response we have received from our Emerald advertising. We are certain that our success with the Microcomputer Purchase Plan has been largely due to the good use of the media. Our promotional events have helped to further educate the campus community on our Macintosh and much of the success of these events has been achieved with advertising in the Emerald.

We are pleased with our results from the ad campaigns. And we feel that the Emerald has helped make the University of Oregon a Mac Campus! We are looking forward to another great year!

Sincerely,
Mary J. Erickson
