of current and past trends are noticeable in what customers buy.

Located at 1128-A Alder St., Old Friends sells casual and formal clothes. Prices are as inexpensive as jewelry for 50 cents. The most expensive item in the store is an Eisenberg original rhinestone pin priced at $95.

Gayle Hutchinson, owner of Rags to Riches, said the most popular types of used clothes are ones from the past two years. "We don't sell vintage clothes because they don't seem to be coming back right now on the West Coast."

Hutchinson described her store as "very trendy" due to the fact that Rags to Riches sells a lot of designer clothes. She doesn't see a specific return to past trends. "People wear what they want to wear," Hutchinson said.

Rags to Riches has a number of dresses for upcoming proms and formals. The store is located downtown at 360 E. 11th Ave.

If you are looking for a foreign look in used clothes, Starting Over, at 1077 Willamette St., is the place to look. Salesman George Gilchrist said, "We have a lot of cotton from India with very bright colors."

Starting Over specializes in clothes from the turn of the century until the present, excluding clothes from the mid-1960s until about 1982.

Tan

Yet, Dr. Kitterman has treated patients with sunburns and photo-induced dermatitis from tanning beds. "And I think it's just a matter of time until I get the cancers," he said.

Dr. Richterich believes that the real dangers will not be completely known for 10-20 years. Dr. Kitterman said, "Unfortunately society says we look better with a tan."

The pros and cons of tanning beds are beginning to be heard. To be knowledgeable customers, those wishing to bronze their bodies on the electric beaches have much to think about. Keeping aware of the latest known facts will help prospective tanners in deciding on the best way to tan or not to tan — for that is the question.
