

recently discovered by former Oregon runner Kenny Moore living under an assumed name in Hawaii. Saturday marks the first time since his disappearance that Lindgren will race using his real name, and he will be joined by Moore, who told Lindgren's story in an April issue of Sports Illustrated

Threatening to be lost in the excitement of the two mile races is the fact that the Twilight meet is the final scheduled home competition of the year for the Oregon men's track team, and one of the last opportunities for Dellinger to add to his list of NCAA qualifiers prior to the Pacific 10 Conference championships next Friday and Saturday at Corvallis.

with the progress of his team to date, but is growing increasingly concerned about pole vaulters Tim Canfield and Jay Davis. The pair have struggled in competition this year, fighting to overcome both injuries and poor weather conditions.

"Just about everyone we expected to get qualified has done it, but the pole vault is getting to be a concern," admitted Dellinger. "Tim has cleared 17-5 in practice (the NCAA standard is 17-5), but he's got to do it in competition now," he said. Both Canfield and Davis have qualified for the Pac-10 meet, but the layout of Patrick Wayne Valley Field in Corvallis is not conducive to high marks.

pair fails to meet the NCAA standard Saturday, he would probably schedule a mini-meet at Hayward Field on May 28 to give them and other Ducks one more chance to compete in Baton Rouge, La., site of this year's NCAA championships June 3-6.

The 1,500-meter race could provide an outside chance for additional NCAA qualifiers, as well. Mark Dunbar, Eric Peterson and David Bailey will be tested by athletes from Washington state to Washington, D.C., who will travel to Eugene in search of an NCAA berth. Also featured will be quality club milers who cannot compete in the Twilight Mile because they did not attend the University.

Club Sports update

Oregon's badminton team won four of five singles matches en route to defeating Oregon State University, 5-4.

The lacrosse club will tackle undefeated Western Washington State University Saturday at 1 p.m. at the intramural fields next to Hayward Field. The Ducks will also host University of Washington at noon on Sunday. Oregon's chances for a shot at the Pacific Northwest Lacrosse Association league title were snubbed last Saturday when it lost to Lewis and Clark College, 5-3, dropping its record to 1-4.

"Bubba's," the Oregon women's soccer team, shut out Coffee Corner, 3-0, last Friday, but on Sunday lost to Player's, 1-0. The Ducks will pit their 5-3 record against Omega next Monday at 6 p.m. at Ascot Park.

The fencing club will send seven of its members to the Beachcombers Open Tournament in Astoria on Saturday. Andrew Berdine, Kathel Kelton, Gila Lehman, William Ball, Owen Mikasa, Ted Stevens and Rodney Ray.

The Oregon baseball club ended its 1987 season with a 12-2 loss to Lane Community College last Thursday. Oregon, which played without a home field and nearly half its games rained out, finished the year at 2-10.
