Market provides free entertainment

By John Wayland

Of the Emerald
Bluegrass, rock and classical sounds will drift across 8th Avenue and Oak Street this month as free musical entertainment complements the hand-made wares and edible delights available at the weekly Saturday Market.

Fiddlin' Sue, Uncle T &

Johnny are scheduled to perform three sets of bluegrass this Saturday at 12:30, 2 and 3:30 p.m. Guitarist/vocalist Kate Sullivan, a member of the band Loose Women, will perform original material and popular songs at 11 a.m.

Saturday Market and The Oregon Country Fair will both be held this weekend, but Saturday Market's Margo Schaefer does not believe the fair will be detrimental to the Market.

"We have fewer booths and different clientele, but we take craft averages every week and business stays about the same" during the Country Fair, Schaefer said.

Entertainment continues July 18 with Eugene's Avalon playing a mixture of reggae and pop. Band of People performing original rock and Hole in the Ocean offering "fun rock tunes" at 11:30 a.m., 12:30 and 3:30 p.m. respectively.

A more subdued offering is scheduled on July 25 with the Madrigal Singing Group opening the Market at 11 a.m. followed by the Montgomery Recorder Consort at 11:30 a.m. The McKenzie String Quartet, a newly formed group from the Eugene Symphony will perform at 12:30 p.m. The 3:30 p.m. act will be announced at a later date.
