

The Campbell Cooperative is one of the many housing options students at the University have open. Photo by Dusty Etzel office is open weekdays and weekends to better serve students interested in finding housing. Their service starts with the bulletin board that stands outside the office. It consists of listings for almost every form of housing available.

The office has maps, brochures, the student renters handbook, information on mass transit in the Eugene/Springfield area and lists of property managers in the area.

For students who have never rented before, the office has inventory and condition reports that give guidelines on what to expect. They also provide counseling for landlord/tenant disputes.

According to Tim Regan, director of the office, every person in the office can provide information on leases, what companies require of renters, and answer just about any question posed by students.

"The office is very well run and doing a great job of helping students find the housing they are looking for. I am very pleased with the job they are doing," said Marjory Ramey, the University Housing Director.

Statistically, freshmen tend to live in the dorms. According to Ramey, the University traditionally houses approximately half of the freshmen class, which fills about two-thirds of the dorms.

In surveys taken through the years Ramey stated there are three reasons why students like the dorms. They like the convenience of the location of the dorms and the services they provide. The friendships students developed and the economy of the dorms were also highly rated, said Ramey.

The 1987-88 school year promises to bring more students to the University than have ever attended before. Due to the increase, searching for housing has been a terror for some. Although there is a large amount of housing available some students may still be searching.

HOW TO BUY TEXTBOOKS AND SAVE MONEY

COME TO THE SMITH FAMILY BOOKSTORE FIRST.

Chances are you will find most of your books at 35-50% off!

BRING THE TITLE AND AUTHOR'S NAME.

It might take some time to find your books, but we will be glad to help you look, and the savings are worth the wait.

RETURN BOOKS YOU DO NOT NEED.

If you buy the wrong books or drop a class, you can return the books for a full refund.

SELL YOUR OLD TEXTBOOKS.

After you buy your textbooks, bring in your old books and The Smith Family Bookstore will buy them for a very fair price.

SMITH FAMILY bookstore

768 East 13th • 345-1651
1 Block from Campus

Rags to Riches

Second Hand Clothing

A decade of service

A re-NEW-able concept in fashion shopping.

Designer, New Wave and Career Styles

We BUY, trade and consign daily!
Call for Appt.

(50 & 60 arrivals everyday)

360 E. 11th
Between Mill and High

344-7039
Hrs. 10-6 Mon-Sat.

F O R
INVITATIONS
BROCHURES
F L Y E R S
P O S T E R S
A N D
M O R E

LETTER PERFECT GRAPHICS

300 EMU
686-5511