tionals by only two points. The top three Western Region teams went on to place first, second, and third at the national championships last year.

Although the men's team seems to be full of experience and talent, John McGloughlin, would like to encourage anyone interested in playing to play. "Many veteran players are gone this year" McGloughlin said.

Rebecca Watkins feels the same and hopes that there will be an increase of women team members. Rebecca, originally from Kansas, joined a Eugene city league ultimate team in 1981 called the Dark Star when she first moved here. The Dark Star team began to focus more on collegiate players because of the larger draw of students.

Different skill levels, ages, and backgrounds have made local ultimate Frisbee a colorful and unique program. The team will instruct and train new members all fall and winter. In winter there tends to be a decline in team participation because of the rain and bad weather.

But the dedicated players insist winter is still a good time. Currently the men and women practice together until they separate later in the term for more training. Practices are on Tuesdays and Thursdays between three and five in the afternoon and on weekends at the Southbank Field.

All are encouraged and invited to come and see and/or participate in the action.

Oregon breaks into national rankings, individuals also cited following upset

By Aaron Knox
Emerald Sports Editor

The Oregon football team cracked the top twenty ranks of one national publication, and finished just out of the elite circle in two others following its 29-22 upset victory over 16th-ranked Washington Oct. 3, the Athletic Department reported Monday.

Three members of the Duck football team also received recognition for their individual performances in last week's contest.

Outside linebacker Scott Kozak was selected as the Honda National Scholar-Athlete of the Week. Kozak will be featured during halftime of Saturday's college football game of the week on ABC.

Quarterback Bill Musgrave was chosen as the Pac-10 offensive player of the week for the second time this season, and placekicker Kirk Dennis was similarly cited for his special teams play.

In polls released Monday, Oregon was ranked 19th by the Sporting News, and 23rd by USA Today/CNN. The Emerald has also learned that coach Rich Brooks' gridders will check in at number 22 in the Associated Press coaches' poll to be released later today.

The ranking by the Sporting News marks the first time since 1984 that the Ducks have cracked a national top-twenty football poll. Sports Illustrated had the Ducks in the 20th position for one week after they jumped out to a 4-0 start in 1984. That team wound up with a 6-5 record.

Oregon has not been ranked by the AP since 1970, when they were also ranked for one week before a tie against Army knocked them back down. The Ducks wound up 6-4-1 that season.

Kozak, a junior, contributed 13 assisted tackles against the Huskies, and leads the team with three quarterback sacks. A physical education major, Kozak was named Oregon's top sophomore student-athlete last year.

Musgrave earned his second player-of-the-week award in just four starts by hitting on 17 of 23 passes for 282 yards and two touchdowns.

In four games, the redshirt freshman has been intercepted just once, while hitting on 64 percent of his attempts for eight TDs. "Billy the Kid" currently ranks second nationally in passing efficiency.

Dennis (see related story, page 11) was perfect on three field goal attempts, including one 53-yarder.
