with a lot of places," Siel said.

Siel said he could not comment on whether the department is running an investigation based on such reports.

At Jiggles there are strict rules to prevent dancers from getting involved in prostitution, Duncan said. Dancers are forbidden to take written messages or business cards from customers or to see customers socially, she said.

If dancers violate those rules they are fined heavily or even fired. Duncan said that to her knowledge no Jiggles dancer has been involved in prostitution, and if she ever found a dancer doing that, she would fire her immediately and report it to the police.

But the problem is best avoided by carefully screening applicants to find "good, clean" girls, she said.

"When I hire somebody in the first place I investigate them thoroughly. I check their police records," she said.

The dancers, some 32 who work anywhere from 20 to 40 hours a week, come from all walks of life. Some dancers are lawyers, doctors, single mothers or University students.

"I often find myself very closely involved with each individual on a personal level," Duncan said. "We're all a very close group. It's almost like a sorority."

Jiggles advertisements to recruit dancers claim dancers make from $1,000 to $4,000 a month. Hansen said to his knowledge only one dancer made more than $4,000 last month.

One dancer, who wished to be identified only by her first name, Tess, said she works about 40 hours a week and makes about $2,000 a month. She said about $400 a month comes from wages and the rest comes from tips.

"Actually I've always loved to flirt and stuff and now I'm getting paid for it, and I think I'm getting paid for it enough to make it worth it to take my top off," she said.

'It's almost like a sorority.'

We need someone with a good back, strong stomach, level head and a big heart.

We have a unique opportunity for someone special. A chance to spend two years in another country. To live and work in another culture. To learn a new language and acquire new skills.

The person we're looking for might be a farmer, a forester, or a retired nurse. Or maybe a teacher, a mechanic, or a recent college graduate.

We need someone to join over 5,000 people already working in 60 developing countries around the world. To help people live better lives.

We need someone special. And we ask a lot. But only because so much is needed. If this sounds interesting to you, maybe you're the person we're looking for. A Peace Corps volunteer. Our representatives will be pleased to discuss the opportunities with you.

Peace Corps.

The toughest job you'll ever love.
