World-class athletes, Olympians compete in Portland track meet

By Tim Wallace
Emerald Contributor

Several current and former Oregon track and field athletes will have the opportunity to test their mettle against some of the best in the world when they participate in the Pacific Northwest Bell Indoor Saturday at Portland's Memorial Coliseum.

The meet, which has attracted a number of Olympic gold medalists and American or world record holders, will be used by many of the veteran performers to gauge their progress as they eye the Olympics later this year.

At the same time, the PNB Indoor will allow Oregon athletes to see how they stack up against the nation's top athletes in their respective events.

Oregon junior Spencer Williams will share the triple jump runway with the likes of Mike Conley, the indoor world record holder, and 1984 Olympic gold medalist Al Joyner.

Rick Bergesen

Three ex-Ducks will toe the line against a 10-man mile field that includes two of the distance's all-time greats.

Dub Myers, Mike Blackmore and Rick Bergesen, all sub-four minute milers while wearing the Green and Yellow, challenge New Zealander John Walker, an Olympic gold medalist at 1,500 meters (the metric equivalent), and American record holder Steve Scott.

Walker and Scott have each run more than 100 sub-four minute miles during their careers.

Current Duck Eric Peterson and Dave Anderton are entered in the 800-meter race.

Senior J.J. Birden, who competes for both the Oregon track and football teams, will compete in the 55-meter hurdles against a field that includes Olympic gold medalist Roger Kingdom and NCAA champion Cletus Clark.

The pole vault figures to be one of the meet's most competitive events, with three of 1987's top four Americans entered. Top rated Earl Bell faces a stiff challenge from ex-Webfoot Kory Tarpinning (ranked second) and Eugene resident Scott Davis (number four).

The women's lineup promises to be equally competitive, with present and former Ducks contributing to the excitement.

In the women's 3,000 meters, Oregon graduate Kathy Hayes will be matched against a field that includes senior Annette Hand. Hayes is the collegiate record holder at the distance, while Hand recently led the Ducks to the NCAA cross country team championship, finishing fifth despite a fall.

Two current Oregon runners will test the field in the women's mile. Junior Penny Graves and sophomore Liz Wilson, both members of the national champion cross country team, are entered against Canadian Olympian Brit McRoberts.

The women's 400 meters also should provide a chance for a Webfoot to gain experience at the world-class level. Eugene resident Judi Brown-King, who captured a silver medal in the 1984 Olympics, will be favored.

Tickets to the PNB Indoor are available at the Athletic Department ticket office until 12 p.m. on Friday. Costs range from $5 to $10. They also may be purchased at G.I. Joe's and at the Memorial Coliseum box office the day of the meet.
