

Delegates to attend USSA congress in Connecticut

The ASUO will send seven delegates to the 41st annual national congress of the United States Student Association (USSA), July 22-27, at the University of Hartford, in West Hartford, Conn.

The University's delegation includes ASUO President Karen Gaffney and Vice President Steve Hoyt. The other five delegates are Armando Morales and Tim Hughes, both members of the Incidental Fee Committee, and Cathlin Williams, Deb Carter and Maria-Ana Carvajal-Christensen.

"I see this (the USSA congress) as an opportunity for the University to use its resources very effectively to shape where USSA will head for the rest of the year," Gaffney said.

USSA will plan its agenda for the 1988-89

academic year at the congress.

At the convention, delegates from schools across the nation will meet in regional groups and caucuses to set plans and priorities on issues of student concern.

This year, Gaffney expects the biggest issues raised at the USSA congress to be taxation waivers for graduate teaching fellows, child care, spousal equivalency for unmarried homosexual and heterosexual couples, and recruitment and retention of students of color.

In addition to representing University interests in the drafting of USSA's agenda, Gaffney hopes to keep the University's influence in USSA strong.

"One of our goals, of course, is to maintain the strong position of the University in the national organization.

Toward that end, Gaffney is encouraging University delegates to seek out leadership positions at the congress. At home, she hopes to create a USSA internship within the ASUO program.

Most members of the ASUO delegation left for Hartford early this morning. Gaffney, who serves on USSA's executive committee, flew out Wednesday for pre-congress meetings.

After the convention's end, Gaffney, Hoyt and Morales will fly to Washington, D.C. to meet with Oregon congressional representatives, including Rep. Peter DeFazio, D-Ore., author of a congressional bill that would reenact the tuition tax waiver granted to graduate teaching fellows.

Endowment created to honor professor

The University's College of Business Administration has been rewarded with an professorship endowment, in honor of a former dean.

The Richard W. Lindholm Professorship was named for Lindholm, who was business college dean from 1958 to 1971. Lindholm retired in 1972, but still remains as a professor emeritus of finance.

The professorship was steered on by James Warsaw, one of Lindholm's former students at the University. Warsaw now resides in Irvine, Calif., where he is a sports equipment businessman.

Warsaw, and several other donors wishing to remain anonymous, contributed a substantial portion of the $500,000 needed to endow the professorship.

According to a University

News Bureau press release, Warsaw said Lindholm played a very influential role in his career decision.

"His enthusiasm and commitment fostered a sensitivity in me that the private sector's involvement in government's issues can have a positive impact on public policy," Warsaw said. "As an individual, as a scholar and teacher, he was a leading figure in my business education."

The first Lindholm Professor will be appointed next fall.

Richard W. Lindholm

Lindholm has served as a fiscal economist and consultant to the U.S. House of Representatives' Ways and Means Committee, an economic consultant to First National Bank of Oregon from 1961 to 1969 and as an adviser to the taxation and finance departments of five states, Guam and six foreign countries.

Lindholm also was a Fulbright scholar to Pakistan in 1952. He was awarded the Beta Gamma Sigma Distinguished Scholarship Award for his distinguished career, and in 1977 he was named a Lincoln Foundation scholar. Lindholm also is listed in the "Who's Who in the World" directory.

Lindholm received his bachelor's degree from Gustavus Adolphus College in St. Peter, Minn. in 1935. He received his master's degree from the University of Minnesota in 1938 and his doctoral degree from the University of Texas in 1942.

The endowment of professorships is one of the goals of Campaign for Oregon, a five-year $60 million capital campaign formally launched last May. The two-phase campaign hopes to bring the University $7.25 million in named endowed academic positions by the end of its run in 1992.
