throws, which gave the Sun Devils the 94-92 lead.

"I knew it was going to be all net," Williams said. "That's what I practice for. I think I'm shooting pretty good from the line, and I had no doubt that I was going to make it."

The Ducks apparently had plenty of doubts about their free throw shooting, as the Webfoots finished 16-30 from the charity stripe.

"We wanted this one to move up a step in the standings, but with the loss, it moves us a step down," Johnson said. "We're in eighth place right now, so we'll have to try and win so we'll have a first round bye."

"This was the start of our three-game win streak that we were going to work on," Lucas added. "We play the Washington schools next, and then get back and try our hand at Stanford and Cal. Unfortunately, we'll just have to go up to Washington and start it up there."

The victory was sweet for the Sun Devils, especially for Williams, who chipped in 22 points and seven rebounds.

... but guard Keith Reynolds, one of four Ducks in double figures (23 points), did make this one in the closing minutes of the game.

"I really enjoyed it," Williams said. "I got going with the crowd. I talked to them the whole game."

The Ducks and their fans

may be talking to themselves and wondering how this one got away, and what the future holds for a struggling Oregon team.
