The 1988-89 campaign was one of the worst in team history for the Oregon men's basketball team, as the Ducks lost 21 games—the most since the 1956-57 season. After early-season wins over the University of Boston and Purdue, the Ducks fell on hard times, eventually dropping nine straight games to close the season. Despite losing key seniors Randy Grant, Frank Johnson and Brett Coffey, the Ducks will regain the services of Richard Lucas (left) and Keith Reynolds (below), next year.

Welcome to the beginning of Spring. Before you know it we'll be back out eating nachos in the sun.
