Even with Pac-10 title looming, Twilight Meet crucial to Ducks

By Ashley Conklin
Emerald Sports Reporter

Although Bill Dellinger tries to downplay Saturday's Twilight Meet as next week's Pacific-10 Conference championships approach, the annual affair could be a big meet for those still looking for NCAA qualifying berths.

"We will be pointing our team for the Pac-10 meet in two weeks," Dellinger said, "but we'll try for as many NCAA qualifying marks as we can this week at the Twilight."

At last year's Twilight, former Duck Joaquim Cruz pushed Oregon's Eric Peterson below the 3:42.20 NCAA standard in the 1,500-meter run. Peterson qualified in 3:41.79 and teammate Colin Dalton just barely missed the mark with a time of 3:42.29.

This time around the NCAA qualifying mark as been raised to 3:42.70, and Jose Barbosa, who won the 1,500 two weeks ago at the Oregon Invitational, will try to lead Dalton, Peterson, and freshman Alan Foster to a spot in the national meet.

Another talented Duck rookie, Art Skipper, hopes to meet the national mark of 225-0 in the javelin. Skipper owns a personal best of 227-7 set at last year's Prefontaine Classic and threw a season's best 224-6 at Washington State last week.

Thrower Jose deSouza will be looking to hit the NCAA standard of 59-7 in the shot put. DeSouza was sixth in the shot put at last year's national championships and has already qualified for the NCAA meet in the discus this year.

On the women's side, Stephanie Wessell and Liz Wilson will make an attempt to meet the 5,000-meter NCAA standard of 16:27.24 against talent-laden 3,000 and 5,000 fields. Wessell owns the Pac-10's top time in the 5,000 at 16:39.34. Wilson qualified in the 5,000 last season and has already qualified in the 3,000 this year.

Already a qualifier for the Pac-10's, Oregon's Jose deSouza will look to qualify for the NCAA's in the shot put this Saturday.

Former Florida State standout Carla Borovicka will be attempting to meet The Athletic Congress (TAC) qualifying mark of 16:20 in the 5,000 and will give Wessell and Wilson someone to shoot for, according to women's head coach Tom Heinonen. In addition, former Oregon All-American Annette Hand will run the 3,000.

"I hope the 3,000 runners will help to make the pace for the first 7½ laps," Heinonen said. "It could be lonely for the last five laps, but I think having the 3,000 runners could help."
