Three qualify for post-season at women's track Twilight Meet

By Ashley Conklin
Emerald Sports Reporter

Oregon's women's track team got what it wanted out of Saturday's Twilight Meet at Hayward Field—an NCAA qualifying spot for Liz Wilson in the 5,000 meters, two Pacific-10 qualifiers in the 800 meters and some competition for javelin thrower Jill Smith.

The Duck women were aided in their quest by what could be considered an all-star women's line-up. With the likes of Annette Hand, Carol Borovicka, Ranza Clark and Karin Smith on hand this warm May evening, the 3,753 in attendance got their money's worth.

Hand and Borovicka helped pull Wilson past the national standard in the 5,000 in the combined 3,000-5,000. Wilson did so with a time of 16:23.97 despite limited training because of a stress reaction in her leg.

"Liz really struggled the last few laps but got the job done," head coach Tom Heinonen said. "She might be a little shy of training. We thought we had it (the stress fracture) under control. It's certainly hindered her training."

"It's nice to know I can run a 5,000 if I want to," Wilson said. "This was my first week to run everyday and I felt like an animal out there."

"Nothing's going my way this year. It's like someone or something is trying to take something away," Wilson said.

With the graduation of Hand and Penny Graves last season, Wilson has taken over the role as Oregon's top distance runner, but said there isn't any added pressure.

"The shoes are on my feet now," she said. "Most of it (pressure) comes from myself."
