Oregon golf ready for West Regional

The Oregon men's golf squad will be one of 16 teams vying for nine entries from the West to the NCAA Championships next month when they take part in the NCAA West Regional in El Paso, Tex., May 25-27. The announcement was made from Las Cruces, N.M., on Wednesday by District 8 Golf Chairman Herb Wimberly of New Mexico State.

The Ducks, who tied for fourth in the Pacific-10 Conference Championships earlier this month, are one of seven Pac-10 schools taking part in the regional, along with Fresno State, San Jose State and Nevada-Las Vegas in District 8.

District 8 includes the Pac-10, Big West and West Coast Athletic Conferences. Pac-10 members in the regional include top-seeded Arizona State, Arizona, USC, Stanford, Washington and UCLA.

Representing District 7, encompassing the WAC and Big Sky Conferences, are top-seeded Texas-El Paso and the regional host, New Mexico. Brigham Young, Nevada-Reno, Weber State and Utah.

Five individuals will also participate for one trip to the NCAA's, June 7-10 in Edmond, Okla., and include Aaron Bengochea of Pacific, Don Parsons of UC-Santa Barbara, Warren Vickers of Oregon State, Paul McGinley of U.S. International and Tim Todd of San Diego State.

This marks the first year of regional qualifying which the golf subcommittee felt would help reduce the number of teams qualifying for the NCAAs, relieve the competitiveness in selections and provide more teams a chance at qualifying.

"We wouldn't have had the chance for an NCAA bid under last year's selection format," Oregon coach Scott Krieger said. "The way we've been playing the last month of the season, we have a real good chance of qualifying for the NCAA's."

As of last weekend, Krieger had determined four of the five spots for a qualifying team. Tom Smith, Chris Holzgang, Troy Tamiya and Bob Rannow have all qualified for the trip to El Paso.
