ASUO freezes funds

By Jolie Andrade
Emerald Reporter

Fallout over frozen student budgets topped the Incidental Fee Committee's agenda at their first meeting of the academic year Tuesday.

The ASUO Executive froze accounts for all student groups with a deficit from the 1988-89 academic year. ASUO Vice president Scott Wyckoff attended Tuesday's IFC meeting to explain the freeze.

Wyckoff said that a letter dated Aug. 25 had been sent to all student groups with a short-fall explaining that their funding would be suspended until payment arrangements could be set up between the ASUO, IFC and the individual groups.

IFC member Tonija Swires said that the decision to freeze budgets was "too drastic," and that the affected student groups were coming back not knowing about the freeze.

Swires said the situation has created "bad feelings" between the ASUO, IFC and student groups.

Arrangements were made at Tuesday's meeting for loans to student groups that could later be paid back through fundraisers.

IFC member Armando Morales moved that the IFC send a formal suggestion to ASUO that the spending freeze be lifted, and that the ASUO then meet with IFC and the separate student groups to decide how loans would be paid off. The motion was not voted on, but Wyckoff said "Student groups would have access to their accounts tomorrow (Wednesday)."

In other business, the IFC voted unanimously to grant $4,500 to the United States Students Association for Grass Roots Organizing Weekend (GROW).

Tim Hughes, USSA representative, gave a presentation on how GROW could benefit University students.

The IFC turned down five special requests made by Emilio Bandiero, president of the Student Bar Association. "I don't feel we can give any increase at this time," said Jack Maynard, IFC member said.
