The Office of Multicultural Affairs (OMA) honored 32 recipients of the Minority Achievement Scholarship Program (MASP) Wednesday night during its annual Faculty and Community Reception.

Marshall Saucedo, OMA advising coordinator, commended the recipients for their outstanding accomplishment in a short speech. Other speakers included Jan Oliver, OMA director, University President Myles Brand, Diane Wong, affirmative action director and Provost Norm Russell.

"Without a doubt these students represent some of the finest students in Oregon," Saucedo said. "Already the past students have proven themselves. I have no doubt that they will follow in their footsteps."

Recipients were awarded scholarships this summer for academic excellence and individual achievement during their high school careers. Each student was awarded a tuition waiver of approximately $1,600, which is renewable for up to five years.
