true original. His commitment is to offer "clothing that is the finest in progressive wearable art anywhere."

He states on his clothing tags that he "designs clothing for the client with tastes for the extraordinary. Because I believe clothing is human figure-tive art."

He is playing with a futuristic design that contains a small computer and an LED readout. The jacket will contain a micro chip inside that is programmed to speak in several complete sentences through a speaker inside the jacket.

Because he started with a small budget, Sander said he has little money left over for advertising. Most of his advertising for his first two products was placed through personal contact and a few well-timed phone calls.

Sander considers himself a progressive person who is attempting to push fashion far into the future.

"Everybody needs to leave a legacy, needs to push themselves to greater limits. If you set your own goals and stick to them you can do anything," Sanders said.

THE UNIVERSITY FLORIST

College bowl finals set, winner travels to Idaho

The College Bowl tournament completed its semi-finals round last night, and four teams from the dorms and three teams that have competed in the EMU will go on to contend for the University championship.

From the EMU competition the winner of the A bracket was Berenger Nightmare, the winner of the B bracket was With the Underhills, and the winner of the C bracket was Merciless Ice Weasels.

According to Recreation Center officials the classification of brackets has nothing to do with placing the EMU winners against the dorms teams. In other words, A is not a higher classification than B. Each team will have equal competing opportunities.

The winners for the dorms were: Walton Timberwolves, Hamilton Bean Cognitive Armageddon, University Inn/Riley Truckin for Jesus II. The winner of Carson Earl was not available at press time.

The seven teams will match up on Feb. 13 at 7 p.m. in the EMU. The winner of that competition will be the University champion and the team will then travel to Moscow, Idaho to compete in the regionals.
