Wrestlers head for tournament

The 15th-ranked Oregon wrestling team will carry its 12-1 season mark into this weekend's Pacific-10 Conference Championships in Bakersfield, Calif. The meet will run all day Saturday and Sunday.

Oregon will face its toughest competition of the season in top-ranked Arizona State. The Sun Devils have won five straight Pac-10 titles and are favored to win the conference crown this season.

Host Cal State-Bakersfield, ranked 10th in the nation in the latest polls, will also be a big obstacle to the Ducks repeating as runners-up in the tournament.

"I think Arizona State is certainly the favorite to win the Pac-10," Oregon wrestling coach Ron Finley said. "Cal State-Bakersfield certainly has improved their lineup and with the addition of some wrestlers at the semester, they will probably give Arizona State a run for their money."

Despite the formidable competition the tourney will offer his team, Finley believes the Ducks have a chance to fare well this weekend.

At 20-5 on this season, Vidlak appears to be in a good position to place high for the Ducks. The 118-pound Vidlak is also 12-0 in dual competition this year.
