School record holder Art Skipper will be a force to be reckoned with both at the Pac-10 and national levels in the javelin this season.

Gray spent last season battling the 42-inch hurdles for the first time and just missed an NCAA qualifying standard with a wind-aided best of 13.95.

Wright qualified for the NCAA meet after transferring from Oregon State and is the third-fastest one-lap hurdler in school history.

In the sprints, senior Davon Russell and sophomore Klaus Weigeldt return in the 100 and 200, while Weigeldt will also chase the NCAA standard in the 400 meters, a mark he just missed last year.

Weigeldt is just one of a number of good quartermilers for the Ducks. Junior Larry Williams, who missed last season because of academic reasons, was fifth at the Pac-10 meet in 1988. Junior Curtis Wilson came on steadily last season and redshirt freshman Chris Thomason adds depth.

"We are no weaker than we were a year ago in the sprints and should be a whole lot better in the relays," Dellinger said.

Gray, Wilson, Weigeldt and Russell comprised the 400-meter relay team last year that ran a season's best 40.01 and just missed the NCAA standard of 39.85. The Ducks should also be able to put together a strong 1,600-meter relay team with the likes of Wilson, Larry Williams, Wright, Weigeldt and Thomason.

On Saturday the Ducks open the dual meet season against Washington in Seattle, a team Oregon beat 132-31 last year, but the Huskies are a better team than a year ago, Dellinger said, after winning the Arizona State Invitational last weekend.
