lose in competition this year. Both throwers have qualified for the Pac-10 meet, but are still in pursuit of the NCAA mark.

Rosie Williams, Oregon's premiere sprinter, will try to keep her undefeated streaks alive in the 100 and 200. She has qualified for the Pac-10 in both events.

The Cougars return with their trio of conference champions. Robertson, last year's champion in the Pac-10 3,000 as well, recorded her fastest 3,000 of the year (9:30.43) last week against the Ducks.

Celeste N'Drin, Pac-10 400 title holder, took first in the 800 last week but is expected to return to the 400 for Saturday. Jennifer Carpenter, reigning league 800 champion, won the 400 last week. Carpenter will also return to her specialty for Saturday.

Georgette Reed dominated the the shot and discus last Saturday and looks to be the favorite in those events Saturday again.

"Washington State is really solid. They're good athletes," said Oregon coach Tom Heinonen.

Cal-Poly returns 12 All-Americans from last year's championship team. The Broncos are strong in the distances and look to challenge a group of young Oregon runners.

Five-time NCAA champion — twice in the 1,500 and three times in the 800 — and meet record holder Teena Colebrook is expected to run in both events as well as the 4x400 relay.

Teammate Melanie Hiatt, third in the 3,000 at the NCAAs, will compete in her specialty. Springfield native Melissa White returns to her home area to compete in the shot put, discus and javelin.

"Cal Poly is a team a lot like ours," Heinonen said. "They're solid right across the board. My early form chart has them winning 187-184."

The distance events are also the strength of Georgetown, proven by a fourth place in last fall's NCAA cross country championships. Freshman Christi Constantin heads the strong contingent of runners and is set to run in the 5,000 Saturday.

Sophomore Chris Char will run the 3,000 after posting a 17:19.30 in her debut two weeks ago in the 5,000.

Freshman Judith Owen established a school record for the Hoyas in the 100 hurdles (14.57) in her first outdoor attempt. Owen will run in both hurdles races this week.

"Georgetown, where they've got people, is really good," Heinonen said. "From 400 meters on up they're dynamite."

The meet begins at 12:10 p.m. with the javelin event.

Tennis team falls to Wildcats in Tucson

The Oregon women's tennis team fell 9-0 Wednesday to the 12th ranked Arizona Wildcats in Tucson's Robson Tennis Center.

Arizona was led by the play of sophomore Danielle Scott, who beat Oregon's top singles player, Kumi Nagamoto in the closest match of the day, 6-3, 6-3.

All nine of the matches were straight-sets wins for Arizona and, other than Nagamoto, none of the Ducks was able to win more than three sets in a match.

Arizona's second doubles player made it 2-0, Wildcats, with a 6-0, 6-2 win over Oregon's Hillary Roberts. Banni Redhair followed in the third position, beating Amber Goheen 6-1, 6-0.

Danielle Klurman of Arizona had little trouble with Oregon's Shelley Brandt, winning 6-2, 6-0. Oregon's Margeret Fraleigh was next, falling 6-2, 6-1 to Arizona's Kyra Johnson.

Kim Grace of Arizona finished singles play, beating Jackie Deford 6-0, 6-0 in the sixth singles play.

Sommerville and Redhair made it 7-0, beating Nagamoto and Goheen in the No. 1 doubles match, 6-2, 6-2. Scott and Beth Choate handed Brandt and Roberts a 6-1, 6-2 setback and the team of Klurman and Johnson beat Fraleigh and Deford 6-0, 6-0.
