Recall

The EWEB recall is a sad but necessary event. This from an alumnus of the University School of Journalism and a former j-school instructor providing also my perspective as former state legislator, legislative administrator, and eight-year member of the EWEB board and a five-year member of the Lane Transit District Board.

By repudiating the actions of Willis, Solin and Thwing, we affirm the importance of fairness and doing the public business openly. Only by removing Willis from office by recall can EWEB and our community leave the painful experience behind and complete the healing process.

There is no place in the EWEB recall for personalities of personal vengeance. My support for recall results from my concern for our utility and for the way we run our public institutions. Recalling Willis will give us an EWEB board not stained with the errors of the past, a board that can work together without rancor.

In less than two weeks you will get a ballot in the mail. I urge you to, among several other issues, punch-out Willis for recall and mail it back as soon as possible, particularly if you are leaving town for the summer.

Take the opportunity to send a message about our community standards of fair play by elected public officials.

Children

The ROTC program is a positive opportunity for many students on university campuses nationwide. For those who would not be able to complete their education otherwise, it offers invaluable assistance and support.

Yet, all of those involved with the ROTC program have made a conscious choice to be there. Whether or not they accept the militaristic principles on which it is based, they are capable of understanding their implications. As adults they have the ability to make their own decisions and I respect those they have made.

Children, however, do not make their own decisions. I am appalled that the ROTC has the gall to train a small child how to use an automatic weapon. There is no excuse for the scene pictured on page three of the June 1 Oregon Daily Emerald.

A young child with his finger on the trigger of a weapon longer than he is tall is a sick example of a paranoid, narrow-minded, heartless country.

The Cold War is over. Please, let's stop training our children to be soldiers. They need to learn that this is a world of people, not a world of enemies.
