Complex open for business

The Len Cassanova Athletic Center is now more than just a dream.

Phase II on the complex just west of Autzen Stadium has been completed with the locker rooms, weight training facility, equipment room, and sports medicine facilities now open for operation. Bids for phase III, with the visiting locker room and Athletic Department offices upstairs, open in the fall, but already the complex means a great deal to the Athletic Department.

"This brings us out of the dark ages in facilities and up into the rest of the league," said football coach, Rich Brooks. "It makes our players feel better about what they are doing and what we are trying to do for them."

"It's just a lot more functional."

The new locker room in the Cassanova Center covers 3,900 square feet, compared to only 800 square feet in the old locker rooms in Autzen Stadium. On game day in the old locker rooms, it was so cramped that the players would have to tape their legs and arms in the shower area, said Steve Hellyer, Oregon Sports Information director, adding that after the games, coaches and players would have to wait in line to take a shower.

The new weight room is comparable in size to any other in the nation, and has sports medicine offices and a warm-up area upstairs.
