It wasn't Arizona's smash-mouth brand of offense or its physical defense that paved the way for the Wildcats' 22-17 Pacific-10 Conference win over Oregon Saturday night.

Instead, it was costly mistakes by the Duck offense that prevented them from winning.

Oregon quarterback Bill Musgrave was intercepted four didn't get it done."

But as bad as it was for the Oregon offense, its defense kept the Ducks in the game.

Three times Arizona could only come up with a field goal after having the ball inside the 10-yard line on Oregon miscues. Inside linebackers Joe Farwell and James Bautista were particularly effective, registering 16 and nine tackles, respectively.

And it was the defense that gave the Ducks a chance to pull it off at the end.

After Gregg McCallum booted a career-long 51-yard field goal with 8:51 remaining to pull Oregon within 22-17, Arizona looked to take some time off the clock.

Quarterback Ronald Veal and halfback Art Greathouse worked the option to perfection, and four first downs had the Wildcats at the Oregon 39.

The Duck defense rose to the occasion though, and stopped Greathouse on fourth-and-one with 4:16 left on the clock.

Musgrave quickly and calmly led the Ducks back down the field.

On second-and-nine from the 30, Juan Shedrick gained six yards and Musgrave hit Jeff Thomason for a first down at the Arizona 48.

Two rushing plays resulted in a first down at the 35, but on

For the third straight game, the Ducks had a minus ratio in the turnover department. This time it was minus-four and that was the difference.

"It was the turnover ratio that killed us tonight in Tucson," Oregon Coach Rich Brooks said. "We had the opportunities to win, but just
