Duck teams win meet, go for Pac-10 titles next

If the Jeff Drenth Memorial cross country meet is an indicator of the power of Oregon's teams, the rest of the Pacific-10 Conference schools had better brace themselves.

Cleaning house is a good way of describing what the Ducks did Saturday to the competition at Eugene's Alton Baker Park. The eighth-ranked women's team and the ninth-ranked men's squad won the team titles in front of an inspirational hometown crowd of spectators.

somewhat of a role reversal for the pair, as Wilson won the top individual honors at the Ducks' previous two meets with Wessell at second overall in both.

Wessell's first place collegiate time came in 17:10 and Wilson ran in 17:13. Other Oregon places included Nicole Woodward who was fifth with 17:29 while Lucy Nusrala finished ninth at 17:50, and Julia Saul rounded out the team scoring with a 13th place run of 17:56.

"They raced real well," said Heinonen, "but it's hard to run two weeks in a row."

It was the final run for both units before the Oct. 27 Pac-10 Championships at Stanford.

"We'll be ready in two weeks," said women's coach Tom Heinonen of the Pac-10 meet.

His team easily beat North Carolina State by 23 points, scoring 30 points to the Wolfpack's 53.

Annette Peters, a 1988 Oregon graduate, won her third Drenth Memorial in a row with a time of 16:57 to best the overall field over the 5,000-meter course.

"I didn't want to go out and lead, but I did," said Peters. "Once I got out in front, I just pressed it."

Oregon seniors Stephanie Wessell and Liz Wilson took first and second among collegian runners, respectively, after Peters, at the meet. It was Junior Colin Dalton ran to a second place overall finish to lead the Duck men past second-place Washington. Oregon's score of 48 points beat the 14th-ranked Huskies' 61. The Ducks also ran a "B" team that placed eighth with 197 points.

North Carolina State's Bob Henes outsprinted Dalton on the last leg to the finish line. Henes' time of 23:56 was a breath ahead of Dalton's 23:57 on the 8,000-meter course.

Oregon's Pat Haller was close behind at sixth place in 24:14, freshman Andy Maris was third for the Ducks and 13th overall with a 24:39 run, 13th overall took 15th place at 24:43, and Shannon Lemora was fifth for Oregon with a 24:54 race.

"I'm pleased with the overall performance," said men's coach Bill Dellinger. "They ran well."
