Smothers Brothers entertain at Hult

By Ming Rodrigues
Emerald Reporter

Mom's favorite sons are back in town.

The Smothers Brothers return to the Hult Center's Silva Concert Hall tonight for yet another hilariously timeless performance.

Fans will be delighted to know that their classic vaudevillian act has not lost its edge: the verbal gymnastics, exaggerated glances and unspoken communication between the brothers are all there.

"They provide spontaneous humour on a variety of subjects, with sing and play intertwined in a truly fresh performance," said Suzanne Kaykas, promoter for Regal Productions, the agents bringing in the show. "There's not a performance like their's out there."

Anyone who has watched television over the last 25 years already knows much of what to expect from the brothers.

We know that the singing siblings never will get through a song, that mom always liked Dick best, and that Tom never will start singing when the eternally optimistic Dick shouts, "Take it."

"They're a special and unique act who are always very well received wherever they are," said Pat Cusick, the Hult Center's assistant marketing director.

In tonight's performance, fans will be treated once again to sight-gags that are Smothers standards and several one-liners that long-time Smothers

But the Smothers Brothers are more than just wonderful comedians. They are also generous musicians who make sure the audience appreciates the backbone of their act. Conductor and pianist Michael Preddy,

The Authorized Biography of Nelson Mandela

Nelson Mandela is the most important political prisoner of our time. Yet although his name and message are well known, the man behind them is not. He has been kept from the South African public and the world for a quarter of a century. This is a dramatic and intimate biography, which draws on letters and reminiscences from Mandela himself and from his close family. Fatima Meer, a friend of Mandela's for many years and a professor of sociology, has provided a meticulously researched and passionately written account of a man who, more than almost anyone, can claim to have made African history.
