

Tickets going for Dec. 29 Freedom Bowl game

Almost 4,000 tickets have been sold by the University Athletic Department Ticket Office for the Dec. 29 Freedom Bowl game as of 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Tickets started going on sale last week after Oregon unofficially accepted an invitation to play in the game. Earlier this week, Colorado State accepted an unofficial invitation to play the Ducks in the bowl game.

Tickets for the Freedom Bowl run $28 apiece for a seat in 72,000-seat Anaheim Stadium. The ticket office had sold 3,776 tickets as of closing time Tuesday.

Oregon ticket manager Hunt Holsapple said that there are two big advantages for fans in buying tickets now rather than waiting to do so just before the bowl game.

"They should purchase the tickets here and not do so when they get down there for two reasons," he said. "Number one, they will get a lot better seat if they buy the tickets now, and number two, they'll be seated with the Oregon contingent if they buy the tickets here."

Tickets can be purchased either at the ticket window or over the phone. Both the Athletic Department and the Alumni Association have set up a local hotline number — 346-1990 in Eugene — to be used for fans seeking travel and ticket information. For fans outside of the Eugene area, the 1-800-WEBFOOT number can also be used for ticket and travel plans.

The ticket office received an original shipment of 15,000 tickets to sell, but can get more if needed.

Special travel arrangements can be made through the ticket office while the Alumni Association is also setting up travel arrangements through staff members.

Local travel agencies are also putting together bus, train and air travel packages that include lodging and ticket packages.
