Oregon, OSU heading in opposite directions

CORVALLIS — The 35,962 people in the stands at Saturday's Civil War matchup saw a game that pitted two teams passing each other in different directions like cars on Highway 99.

While the 8-3 Oregon Ducks migrated back to Eugene with six weeks to get healthy and prepare for the Freedom Bowl, Oregon State is stuck in Corvallis, faced with a long winter that is filled with numerous unanswered questions.

The Ducks' 6-3 victory over the 1-10 Beavers showed how far Oregon has come in the last couple of years and how far Oregon State still has to come.

Oregon has been trying to take the final step from a school that has good football teams to a school with a good football program that produces solid teams year in and year out.

The Ducks took a major step toward building that type of reputation Saturday, overcoming obstacles including injuries to key players.

Without starting quarterback Bill Musgrave for the entire game, and with only minimal help from tailback Sean Burwell and wide receivers Joe Reitzug and Michael McClellan, the Ducks looked to their defense and special teams to lead them by the hated Beavers. Gregg McCallum and the Ducks' defense didn't disappoint.

McCallum booted two field goals and the defense held the Beavers to 198 yards of total offense, including 27 yards rushing on 38 attempts.

The Oregon defense knew that with or without Musgrave, it was going to play a major role in the outcome of the Civil War contest.

"We started out this week knowing it has to be a defensive week," nose tackle Marcus Woods said. "We didn't know if we'd have Bill or not so we knew we had to do it on defense."

Woods, who hails from Corvallis, led the Ducks' attack with six tackles, including three behind the line of scrimmage. He also chipped in by causing a fumble (recovered by the Beavers), and registering a quarterback sack.

Oregon Coach Rich Brooks knew his team was hurting and needed the defense to take charge, which is exactly what they did.

"I'm proud of the way the team played in the second half," Brooks said. "The defense had to control the game for us and they did."

The Ducks' medical list has grown almost every week, but it bordered on obscene during the Civil War game. Oregon played most of Saturday's game without six offensive skill players that started in the Ducks' season-opener against San Diego State.

Musgrave's sore shoulder kept him from playing a down on Saturday, the first game he has missed this year, but his injury was just the beginning for the Ducks.

During the game, Oregon lost the services of Burwell, Reitzug, new starting quarterback Bob Broth- ers and outside linebacker Andy Conner.

Brothers and Conner were able to return and contribute, but Burwell, who came back briefly, and Reitzug, who watched the second half in street clothes, joined the long list of Duck casualties.

On the Beaver side, Coach Dave Kragthorpe saw the game as a microcosm of the Beavers' long, frustrating year.

"I think it (the game) was appropriate," Kragthorpe said. "It was consistent with how we played all year long. We just can't seem to get a handle on what it takes to get the job done."
