

First American hostages freed arrive in Germany

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — The first Americans freed under Saddam Hussein's order releasing all foreigners arrived in Germany early Monday. Other former hostages prepared to leave Iraq after more than four months under guard or in hiding.

Some of the 175 Americans on the U.S.-chartered Iraqi Airways jet that landed in Frankfurt were expected to go to a U.S. Air Force hospital in nearby Wiesbaden. Most planned to return to the United States on Monday.

Lorin Hubbard, 66, a Boeing Co. executive held as a "human shield" at an ammunition plant 35 miles west of Baghdad, Iraq, said he had waited for bombs to fall.

"We were hoping they'd blow the place up. We had no idea when we'd get out," he said. "Nobody knew where we were, as far as I know."

"Now I just want to see mom and dad," said Joseph Lammerding, 35, a native of Sacramento, Calif.

He said he would like to return to the region to help the U.S.-led military effort against Iraq. "I hope to be back in Saudi Arabia next month," said Lammerding.

"This is the first time I have had shoes on in over three months," said construction worker Randal Warren, 49, of Charleston, Mo., who said he hid in the top floor of a Kuwaiti apartment building and went barefoot to keep quiet.

The flight also carried more than 90 Britons, about 30 Canadians, and former hostages from Ireland, Greece, Austria, Argentina, Denmark, Italy, the Netherlands and Switzerland, said airport officials in Baghdad.
