Stoudamire may be joining Ducks

By Robert Weber
Emerald Sports Reporter

Two years after becoming the first Oregonian to enter Georgetown University on a basketball scholarship, Antoine Stoudamire appears close to completing the details for transfer to the University.

Last month, Georgetown Coach John Thompson announced that his Hoya team would be without the services of Stoudamire for the remainder of the season. Since then, rumors have been circulating that the 6-foot-3 sophomore guard would surface in Eugene.

As a senior at Jesuit High School in Portland, Stoudamire led the state in scoring at 23.3 points a game and in rebounding at 14 a game. He expressed an interest in playing for the Ducks but no scholarship was available — until now.

Stoudamire, who was expected to arrive in Portland on Tuesday, declined to be interviewed until his academic records are received by the University and he is accepted as a student.

Oregon Coach Don Monson said Tuesday that he was unable to discuss the matter but did say that as far as he knew, Stoudamire was in the process of filling out the forms for University admission.

Reportedly, if Stoudamire is accepted by the University, a basketball scholarship will be available. If he enrolls this week for winter term, Stoudamire will be free to practice with the Ducks although he wouldn't be eligible to play until after fall 1991.

Stoudamire's signing with Georgetown made big news around the state, and when he saw action in 29 games as a freshman, he appeared on his way to becoming a key part of the Hoya attack.

As a freshman, Stoudamire, known for his soft shooting touch, averaged 3.1 points and 1.1 rebounds per game, but he connected on only 39 percent of his field goal attempts. He did manage 15 of 45 three-point shots and eight of 10 free throws in his first year.

His best game came against Florida International, where he hit all seven of his attempts in the first half on his way to 24 points, four rebounds and five steals in 22 minutes of play.

The majority of last year's Hoya guard core either graduated or transferred, leaving Stoudamire as one of the more experienced players, but he missed a month of preseason practice because of a virus and never fully recovered the time he missed.

In five games this season, he averaged 2.4 points and 1.4 rebounds while shooting 43 percent from the field. He had a season-high six points in the Hoyas' loss to Ohio State early in December.

Oregon fans are hoping that Stoudamire will be joined at Oregon by his cousin, Damon Stoudamire, considered the state's best prospect. He has visited Oregon but decided against signing a letter of intent during the early signing period last fall.

Wrestlers triumph over Bakersfield

Oregon's wrestling team caused a mild upset Monday night, beating 13th-ranked Cal-State Bakersfield 22-13 in Bakersfield, Calif.

The Ducks, ranked 21st, got off to a quick start and sealed the win with victories by Curt Strahm and Cam Strahm at 190 pounds and heavyweight, respectively.

Oregon, now 4-0 in dual meets this season, won its 15th straight dual meet in the past two seasons.

The nation's top-ranked 118-pounder, Dan Vidlak, got things rolling for the Ducks with a 6-4 decision over Pat Higa.

Rob Stone, Scott Glenn and Pat Craig followed Vidlak's wins with victories of their own at 134, 142 and 150 pounds, respectively. Stone squeaked out a 3-2 decision over Tony Beavers, while Glenn won by an 8-3 count, and Craig won his match 6-3.

Oregon also got a draw at 158 pounds from Darren Gustafson, but Bakersfield came back with wins over Mat Sprague at 167 pounds and Jeff McCoy at 177 pounds. Sprague was decided 7-5 by Brian Malavar while McCoy lost 10-1 to Mark Cheff.

The Strahm brothers helped ice the take with a pair of easy wins. Curt Strahm won his match 26-10 while Cam Strahm had an 11-3 win.

The Ducks were at Cal-State Fullerton Tuesday night, but results of the match were unavailable at press time. Oregon wraps up its five-match, seven-day swing through California Wednesday at Stanford.
