

Oregon wrestlers trampled Stanford

Oregon's wrestling team wrapped up its five-match, seven-day California trip with a 40-3 rout of Stanford Wednesday night.

The Ducks won all five matches in California to improve their dual meet record to 6-0 this season. It was also Oregon's 17th straight dual meet victory over the past two seasons.

Oregon was never seriously threatened against the Cardinal, winning the 167-pound and heavyweight matches by forfeit and picking up technical falls and easy decisions the rest of the way.

Pat Harai and Curt Strahm won their 126 and 190-pound matches, respectively, on technical falls. In wrestling, a technical fall occurs when one opponent leads by 15 or more points.

Dan Vidlak, the second-ranked 118-pounder in the nation, had an easy time in a 20-6 win over Phil Norwick while Rob Stone, at 134 pounds, also had an easy time in a 9-0 win over Jay Jackson.

Scott Glenn (142 pounds), Pat Craig (150 pounds) and Darren Gustafson (158 pounds) were also winners for the Ducks.

high 25 points in a win over Gonzaga Monday.

"I think their guard play with McKinney and Brantley gives them pretty prolific scoring, but the key to beating them, as it was in the other game, is limiting Teo Alibegovic," Monson said. "He's probably the player we're most concerned with."

Oregon also has to be concerned with the inside play of Scott, who averages 11.7 points and nine rebounds per game, giving the Beavers a legitimate big man for the first time since Jose Ortiz left three seasons ago.

"I don't know if they're tougher inside," Monson said, "but Scott has made them a better rebounding team. He's a good offensive player and relentless on the boards."

Monson said that Clyde Jordan would again start at small forward ahead of Jordy Lyden who gunned in a career-high 15 points in the overtime win against Stanford.

"I'll start Clyde right now," he said. "I don't want to disrupt the line-up that has won the last four games for us and Jordy is better than Clyde at coming off the bench."

Duck Notes: As expected, Antoine Stoudamire has officially transferred from Georgetown to Oregon to play basketball. A graduate of Portland's Jesuit High School, Stoudamire will begin attending classes Friday and should be eligible to play for the Ducks after fall term next year. Stoudamire led the state in scoring (23.3 points a game) and rebounding (14 per game) as a senior at Jesuit.
