Men's tennis slams Westmont

By Robert Weber
Emerald Sports Reporter

The Oregon men's tennis team showed Tuesday how much better it can perform when it doesn't have any problems getting to a match.

Just five days after having to forfeit a match in the Nevada Bob's Invitational in Las Vegas due to airplane problems, the Ducks (5-7) returned home and soundly defeated Westmont College 6½-2½ Tuesday afternoon.

Freshman Lee Kirner gave Oregon a strong start at first singles with a 6-2, 6-1 victory over Westmont's Steve McRaxin.

In all, the Ducks claimed victories in five of the six singles matches with wins by Ryan Marasigan, Nick Smith, Doug Root and Ted Thoren.

Chris Gladwell, at fifth singles, was the lone singles loser, dropping a 6-4, 6-4 decision to Westmont's Steve Hirons.

The two teams split at second and third doubles while the first singles match was scrapped after two sets so Westmont could catch a plane out of town, creating the unusual final score.

Tuesday's match was Oregon's fourth in five days, including three in the Las Vegas tournament.

The team was supposed to leave Eugene last Thursday in order to arrive in time to play a match Friday morning, but after a five-hour delay the flight was canceled.

Oregon finally left early Friday morning and landed in Las Vegas in time to rush over and lose a 5-2 decision to Northern Arizona Friday afternoon. Buzz Summers, the Ducks' coach, said the team was physically exhausted and unable to perform against Northern Arizona due to the travel problems.

The Ducks rebounded on Saturday to defeat Loyola-Marymount 5-1, in another match that wasn't completed.

Summers was unhappy about missing a match but was otherwise pleased with the weekend.

"It was good for us to be tested," he said, "and to get experience against other teams."

His team's next challenge will be Feb. 27th at the University of Portland.

BREAKING ICE

AN ANTHOLOGY OF CONTEMPORARY AFRICAN-AMERICAN FICTION

Edited by Terry McMillan

The African artist allows wide scope to his fantasy in the mask...With colors, feathers, and horns he accomplishes some astonishingly lively effects. In a slow creative process he brings to life a work which constitutes a new unit, a new being. If the sculpture proves to be a success, a helpful medium, the tribe adheres to this form and passes it on from generation to generation...Thus we have a style, a firmly established formal canon, which may not be lightly discarded...For this reason a style retains its specific character for decades, even centuries. It stands and falls with the faith to which it is linked.
