Berry breaking through in javelin

Oregon javelin thrower Paula Berry is enjoying a good season after qualifying for the NCAAs at the first meet of the year.

She is one of the greatest javelin throwers in Oregon history. She is among best in the nation at getting the spear far down the field. She owns the 10th-best javelin mark of all-time for a high school competitor.

Ironically, Paula Berry used to run the 800 meters.

"It's kind of odd for people to believe now," she said.

That's not surprising, but perhaps even stranger are the circumstances under which the Oregon senior has thrown the javelin.

After a spring devoid of an NCAA qualifying mark in 1989, Berry met the NCAA standard last year by stabbing a personal record to win the javelin throw at the Pacific-10 Conference Championships.

This year, Berry popped off an NCAA qualifying throw on her first toss of the year, at the Oregon Preview in March.

"Getting this throw off was like, thank you soooo much," she said. "It felt really good to get that monkey off my back so early."

And despite a drenching rainstorm at last month's dual meet with Washington, Berry's javelin pierced the gray sky for a PR of 182-3, the fourth-best
