

Tickets still available for NCAA track meet

Tickets are still available for this week's NCAA Track and Field Championships at Hayward Field, the University ticket office said Tuesday afternoon.

Four-day ticket packages to the championships become available today. Reserved seating on this four-day package costs $45, adult general admission costs $30 and general admission for children and senior citizens costs $25.

One-day reserved tickets are also on sale. Reserved seating for Wednesday and Thursday costs $10 for each day, and reserved seats for Friday and Saturday are $15 apiece.

General admission seating for each of the four days remains on sale.

For Wednesday and Thursday, adult general admission costs $8, and the cost for University students, children and senior citizens is $7 a day. For Friday and Saturday, adult general admission is $11, and University students, children and senior citizens are $9 apiece.

Ticket manager Hunt Holsapple said the ticket sales were going "fairly well," but he didn't expect any sellouts.

Blazers stay alive in playoff series

PORTLAND (AP) — Buck Williams knew his season wouldn't be over Tuesday night.

"I had my bags packed already," he said. "I knew we were going back to the Forum."

Williams said he was as ready to play as he'd ever been after his team's embarrassing blowouts over the weekend.

"I was just so disappointed in myself and disappointed in our team," he said. "We're a much better team than we've exhibited. We had to get back to playing Trail Blazer basketball."

Williams responded by pulling down 16 rebounds to lead a dominating Portland performance on the boards, and the Trail Blazers beat the Los Angeles Lakers 95-84 to stay alive in the Western Conference finals.

"Buck was unbelievable," Portland Coach Rick Adelman said. "He was everywhere."

"Buck is an inspiration to this team," Jerome Kersey said. "You know he's always going to be around the ball. I just hope he saved some energy for Thursday in Los Angeles."

The Blazers had a 52-33 rebound advantage, 26-9 on the offensive boards, and Los Angeles committed 17 turnovers as Portland cut the Lakers' lead in the best-of-seven series to 3-2.

Los Angeles still can wrap up its eighth Western Conference title in 10 years and advance to an NBA final showdown against Chicago with a victory Thursday night at the Forum.

But they may have to do it without James Worthy, who sprained his left ankle in the first quarter. He tried to return to the game but finally sat down for good with 9:34 to play.

Worthy said his ankle is tender, but won't keep him out of the sixth game. However, team doctor Stephen Lombardo said the severity of the injury won't be clear until Wednesday.

Kersey led five Blazers in double figures with 20 points and nine rebounds. Clyde Drexler added 19 points and Terry Porter 17, including 12 in the second half. Williams and reserve Cliff Robinson scored 13 apiece.

Magic Johnson scored 29 points and hit four 3-pointers, but he was only 3-for-14 from the field after making his first five shots. Vlade Divac added 14 points.

Worthy, defended by Williams most of the time he was on the court, finished with 12 points, as did Sam Perkins.

"It's not one person. Everybody got a bad grade," Johnson said of his team's performance. "We can't be looking at one another wondering whose man it was."

Portland, the defending conference champion and owner of the NBA's best regular-season record at 63-19, is attempting to become the fifth team in league history to come back from a 3-1 deficit.

Adelman went with a switching defense for the first time in the series.

"We just wanted to give them a different look," he said. "They had been so comfortable against us."

With the Blazers using different matchups and with Worthy hobbling, the Lakers struggled on offense. The Blazers made it more difficult by setting a club playoff record for offensive rebounds.

"We have to do a better job on the boards and figure out more ways to manufacture more points," Lakers Coach Mike Dunleavy said.

The Blazers, who trailed by as many as eight points in the first half, took control for good by outscoring the Lakers 28-18 in an intense third quarter that featured five ties and three lead changes.

Portland finished the quarter with a 11-4 run for a 75-68 lead. Five Blazers scored during the decisive spurt. The Lakers got no closer than five in the final quarter.

When it comes to increasing productivity at an economical price, there's no tool that's more able.

Meet the Macintosh[®] Classic[®] computer. It's the most affordable Macintosh, yet it can handle a variety of basic home, office, and classroom applications, such as word processing and spreadsheet analysis.

The Classic is a complete Macintosh. Its monitor, keyboard, mouse and system software are all included, as are extras you might not expect—such as the ability to network and the Apple[®] SuperDrive[™] disk drive, which lets the Classic read from and write to MS-DOS, OS/2, and ProDOS[®] files.

The Classic can easily go where you need to go, when you need to go there. Its integrated design, light weight and built-in carrying handle are ideal for a person on the move.

So come in and see a demonstration. And see a new value in personal computing that couldn't be more respectable. Or affordable.
