

NCAA meet belongs to Guidry

Texas senior Carlette Guidry saved her best for last.

In three previous NCAA Track and Field Championships, Guidry and the Texas 4x100 relay team suffered through injuries, disqualifications and a dropped baton. But 1991 was a much different story.

Guidry was undefeated in four days at Hayward Field, boosting the Texas women to a 67-point, second-place finish behind champion Louisiana State's 78-point total. Guidry led the way with two individual championships and anchored a record-breaking effort by the relay team.

"I think this was the sweetest NCs I've had," she said. It was one of the busiest, too.

The relay team of Stacy Clack, Tamela Saldana, Michelle Williams and Guidry won the first heat of Wednesday's semifinals in 43.75, and on Thursday Guidry won the first heat of the 100-meter dash preliminaries in 11.20. On Friday, Guidry won her heats in the 100 and 200-meter dash semifinals.

And then there were the dramatic championship victories.

Texas was in second place when Guidry took the baton from Williams in Friday's 400-meter relay final. Guidry responded by chasing down and passing LSU's Esther Jones, last season's top women's sprinter.

"I gave it (the baton) to Carlette, and I knew she was capable of doing what she had to do," Williams said.

"I just said to myself, 'Relax, and go after her.' And I won the race," Guidry said.

Texas' 42.88 time established a new Hayward Field record, erasing the 43.46 mark set by LSU on Wednesday.

"I'm floored with that time," said Texas Coach Terry Crawford. "I had no idea they would run under 43.5."

Guidry would have been the owner of two more Hayward Field records, but her Saturday victories in the 100 and 200 finals were declared wind-aided. Her 10.91 in the 100 edged Jones' second-place mark of 10.99 and Guidry won the 200 in 22.44.

The races were close until Guidry pulled away with aggressive finishes.

"I think Carlette just had an excellent acceleration point in the last 10 meters," Jones said.
