

Oregon Daily Emerald

TUESDAY, JULY 9, 1991

EUGENE, OREGON

VOLUME 93, ISSUE 6

Charlotte Richardson, 23, a former University student who was critically injured in a bicycle accident in 1988, is put through the motions of crawling by former boyfriend Charles Webb and other volunteers.

Photo by Jeff Paslay

Stacey picked for vacant seat

By Daralyn Trappe
Emerald Associate Editor

Anita Stacey was appointed by the ASUO to fill the Incidental Fee Committee seat vacated a month ago when Mike Colson was voted out.

A fourth-year English major, Stacey will complete the final year of the two-year term Colson was elected to in spring 1990. She was one of 16 applicants for the position on the seven-member committee that allocates student fees to the athletic department, the EMU and more than 90 student groups.

A former Panhellenic Council president, Stacey was selected because of her involvement in campus activities and her attitude toward relations between the IFC and student groups, said ASUO President Jennifer Bills.

Bills, who could have made the appointment under presidential powers, instead organized a committee to review applications and conduct interviews.

The committee was made up of Bills, ASUO Vice President JoSonja Watson, ASUO Executive Coordinator Cheryl Hunter, current IFC member Priscilla Warren and Sue Dockstader, director of the Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Alliance.

The committee made the final selection, Bills said.

Colson was voted out of office by the IFC on June 1 following nearly four months of debate over his possible role in the altering of IFC meeting minutes. An ASUO investigation concluded in April that Colson was responsible for the minutes tampering. He has maintained his innocence. At that time, a vote by the IFC members to remove him failed.

When five new members took office May 25, however, they reviewed the investigation report as well as subsequent documents from both the ASUO and Colson and voted to remove him.

Students help 'pattern' victim's life

By Kirsten Lucas
Emerald Contributor

For more than 150 volunteers, more than half of whom are University students, working with a young woman with a severe head injury has been a moving experience.

Over the past two years, 23-year-old Charlotte Richardson has been moved by and moved many participants involved in an intense voluntary effort to help her recover from a 1988 bicycle accident through a therapy called "patterning."

Richardson slammed headlong

Turn to VOLUNTEERS, Page 4

New facilities open doors for athletics

'The house that football built' will be home to entire department

By Ashley Conklin
Emerald Sports Editor

The University Athletic department may have finally overcome a severe case of claustrophobia.

After years of being hidden away in the tiny confines of McArthur Court and Gerlinger Hall, the entire department has now moved into the spacious Len Casanova Athletic Center next door to Autzen Stadium.

Although the $11.767 million, 102,000-square foot building, named after the former Oregon football coach and athletic director, still has some work left to be completed, the entire Athletic Department moved in at the end of June.

In the past, all men's coaches' offices were housed in McArthur Court; women's coaches were in Gerlinger Hall. Some administrative personnel were either in Susan Campbell or Johnson halls. Now all of those people are united under one roof.

"We can be so much more efficient now simply because everyone is under one roof and close together," University Athletic Director Bill Byrne said. "We're excited and absolutely thrilled to be here. It's been a long time coming."

Throughout the department there is tremendous enthusiasm for the new building that brings Oregon's facilities up to par with other universities in the Pacific-10 Conference.

"It kind of perks you up coming into work in the morning," volleyball coach Gerry Gregory

Turn to CASANOVA, Page 4

Photo by Jeff Paslay

With construction still taking place, the athletic department moved into the Len Casanova Athletic Center at the end of June.

Inside

The debut album from The La's, a pop group from Liverpool, is worth your time and money. The heavy metal band L.A. Guns, however, has put out a record that's long on glitz and short on originality.

See reviews, Page 3

National

CICERO, Ind. (AP) — Vandals again desecrated the grave of Ryan White, the young AIDS victim who gained worldwide recognition by fighting discrimination against those with the disease, police said Monday.

White's 6-foot 8-inch gravestone at Cicero Cemetery was toppled sometime between Friday night and Saturday morning, the fourth time White's grave had been vandalized. In previous instances, vandals had used paint or uprooted flowers, police said.

Ryan's mother, Jeanne White, offered a $500 reward for information leading to the vandals' arrests.

"It's a quiet cemetery and I don't know why they can't leave him to rest," Mrs. White said.

Hamilton County Deputy Sheriff Jon Robison said no arrests has been made by Monday afternoon.

White died April 8, 1990. Among those who attended his funeral were first lady Barbara Bush, entertainers

Elton John and Michael Jackson and talk show host Phil Donahue.

Sports

Amy Petterson, who served as a part-time assistant coach for Oregon's women's basketball program last season, has been elevated to a full-time position on the Ducks' coaching staff, head coach Elwin Heiny said.

The 25-year-old Petterson replaces Dave Lipp, who returned to Northwest Christian College as head men's basketball coach and athletic director following six seasons on the Oregon women's staff.

Petterson played for the Ducks under Heiny from 1983 through 1988 and completed her collegiate career seventh on the school's career rebounding chart with 609 rebounds. She then spent two seasons playing basketball in Australia before returning to the University of Oregon a year ago.