

Police say Milwaukee man confessed to killings

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The convicted child molester whose apartment held body parts of 11 men confessed to drug-ging, strangling and dismembering the victims and boiling some of their skulls to preserve them, police said Wednesday.

Jeffrey L. Dahmer, 31, told police he met his victims at taverns or shopping malls and lured them to his apartment for photographs, Police Lt. David Kane wrote in an affidavit submitted in Milwaukee County Circuit Court.

"Dahmer further stated that he would drug these individuals and usually strangle them and then he would dismember the bodies, often boiling the heads to remove flesh so he could retain the skulls," the affidavit said.

"Mr. Dahmer further stated that he took Polaroid photographs of a number of these persons while they were still alive, after he had killed them, and of their heads and body parts after he had dismembered them," it said.

Circuit Judge Frank T. Crivello accepted the affidavit during a brief probable-cause hearing and set bail at $1 million cash. Prosecutors said they plan to file a criminal complaint charging Dahmer today.

Dahmer, a former chocolate factory worker on probation for a 1988 sexual assault of a teen-age boy, didn't appear in court.

Earlier, Police Chief Philip Arreola wouldn't address a report that Dahmer had confessed to cannibalism.

Arreola said it appeared all the victims were male.

Dahmer's lawyer, Gerald Boyle, said Dahmer held himself responsible for the killings.

"He said, quote, he has no one to blame but himself, not the police, not the courts and not the probation department," Boyle told reporters.

"He said there comes a time when you have to be honest, and this is the time."

Boyle said his client is mentally competent to participate in court proceedings and wouldn't contest efforts to keep him jailed.

"He wants to continue to talk to the authorities, to assist the authorities in identifying the victims," the lawyer said. "The state has every right to hold him."

Dahmer, originally from Medina, Ohio, served less than 10 months in prison for a 1988 sexual assault of a 13-year-old boy in Milwaukee. Dahmer was released in March 1990 and was on five years' probation, but his probation officer never visited his home as is usually required for felons.

Arreola called that "a damning indictment" of the judicial system.

"Here we see the dramatic and tragic results," Arreola said.

State corrections spokesman Joe Scislowicz said the requirement that probation agents visit probationers' homes was waived in Dahmer's case because the agent's workload was heavy and Dahmer lived in a high-crime neighborhood.

Scislowicz said the agent met with Dahmer monthly in her office.

"There were no signs, apparently, no overt signs, no clues, no hints, of a nature that would cause this agent to do anything other than what she did," he said.

ment of Education made a preliminary ruling that Holland had likely committed violations. No subsequent violations have been noted, Rooker wrote.

In the matters of the selling of names and disclosure of records, it was determined that the University has taken "appropriate steps" to ensure that such violations do not occur in the future, the decision said.

Eight other allegations of privacy rights violations involving Bills were dismissed by Rooker.

Bills, now a legal researcher in the Southwest, said the ruling is "a fair decision, a just decision."

"I hope, with what's happened to me, that students will not take this, that they will seek legal counsel when they are mistreated."

Solomon talk on media bias

Author Norman Solomon, who co-wrote Unreliable Sources: A Guide to Detecting Bias in News Media, will speak in Eugene on Sunday as part of the Eugene PeaceWorks Annual Meeting.

The day's events begin with a reception for Solomon at 3 p.m. followed by a meeting at 3:30 to elect officers and discuss the future direction of the group. Dinner will be served at 5 and Solomon will speak at 6:30 about media bias and what actions can be taken by people interested in promoting change.

David Zupan of PeaceWorks said he expects Solomon to focus attention on media coverage of the Persian Gulf war.

Solomon can also be heard Sunday at 11 a.m. on radio station KLCC.

Following his presentation Sunday night, a contra dance will be held at 8 with the local band Give Us A Break performing. Contra dance is a combination of English country music and square dancing in which the caller teaches participants the dances.

Admission prices are on a sliding scale. Tickets to the dance only are from $5 to $15, tickets to the dinner and speech are also $5 to $15 and the entire event costs between $8 and $15. Advance tickets for the entire event can be purchased for $7 at PeaceWorks office at 454 Willamette St.

The day's events will all take place at the Hilyard Center, 2580 Hilyard St.
