nia's $14.3 billion deficit.

San Diego State and the other 19 campuses in the California State University system increased fees 20 percent, to $559 per semester. The rest of the funding shortfall was made up by lost classes, laid-off faculty and staff, shortened library hours, or reduced athletic programs.

Michael Beteag, a senior marketing major, had planned to graduate in May. He was told he was lucky to get into two of the seven marketing classes he lacks. And next semester likely will be worse.

"I'm frustrated," Beteag said. "They've raised my tuition, but cut classes. It doesn't make sense."

lege got $112.6 million in fiscal 1991. This year, they're getting $116.4 million. Tuitions up from 7 percent to 11 percent, and fees for health and student services also rising sharply. Delaware State plans to use tuition and fee increases to boost faculty pay.

FLORIDA — The $1.42 billion 1991-92 state budget for higher education is down $112 million. State universities raised tuitions 15 percent for this year, after a 10 percent increase the previous year. The University of Florida in Gainesville has eliminated some summer classes and cut 400 staff positions. Miami-Dade Community College has ended unlimited admissions.

GEORGIA — State funds being cut to $869.2 million in fiscal 1992, compared with $909.8 million in 1991. Ten million dollars came from a 40 percent swipe at the Cooperative Extension Service, requiring 390 layoffs. University system has frozen travel, and colleges have scaled back plans for faculty recruitment.

IDAHO — Allocations for state campuses total $329.4 million for the 1991-1992 year, up from $313.6 million the previous year. Student fees rising 6 percent for residents, 10 percent for non-residents. No programs being eliminated; in fact, the Legislature earmarked $500,000 to start new master's degree program in social work at Boise State.

ILLINOIS — Funding up fractionally to $1.9 billion from last year's $1.88 billion. All 10 state universities hiking tuition by 5 percent. Universities postponing maintenance, trimming travel and delaying administrative hiring. Some considering fee increases for student activities.

IOWA — State funding down this year: $498.3 million from $501.5 million. But Board of Regents adopted policy that tuition increases will be less than inflation rate, so fees increasing just 3 percent this fall to slightly more than $1,800. Despite enrollment growth, community college teachers and administrators being laid off.

KANSAS — Tuition for Kansas students up 8 percent this fall. Non-resident students will pay 15 percent more. State funds for public universities total $397.6 million for current fiscal year, down from $404.5 million in fiscal 1991.

MARYLAND — Two-year colleges getting 9.5 percent funding increase — but everyone else is losing. Overall appropriations are dropping to $743.8 million in fiscal 1991-92, down from $757.5 million. University of Maryland's College Park campus considering shutting down seven programs with small enrollments. Tuitions up 4 percent for residents, 15 percent for out-of-staters.

MASSACHUSETTS — Higher education receiving $100 million less in state funds than last year — $476 million. University chancellor quit, along with five top U-Mass administrators, including the president. More than 1,100 of 13,000 university employees laid off. Class sizes up, courses have been canceled. Campus libraries closed on nights and weekends. Tuition rose 33 percent last year and will go up another 6 percent this year, making U-Mass nation's second most expensive public university.

MICHIGAN — Budget talks continuing, but Republican Gov. John Engler has proposed $1.3 billion in higher education funding for 1991-92 fiscal year starting Oct. 1, up from $1.24 billion in the current year. Tuitions up 7.1 percent at Michigan State University, 9.7 percent at University of Michigan-Ann Arbor, 6.5 percent at Wayne State, and 20.4 percent at Lake Superior State.

MISSISSIPPI — Legislature cut basic appropriation to state's eight campuses to $182 million for fiscal 1992, from $197 million in fiscal 1991. Tuition hikes average 14 percent. Five hundred students protested a 17.7 percent hike at predominantly black Jackson State University.
