Oregon took top honors at its own tournament after knocking Gonzaga in the fourth game of the championship match.

The Oregon Tournament began with a Sep. 6 match between Idaho, 2-4, and Oregon, 7-0, in which the Ducks quickly put Idaho behind them in three seemingly effortless games. Gonzaga and Illinois went five games in the other match that night before the Zags finally won.

The next day, Illinois tore Idaho apart in a three-game consolation match, but the championship wasn't as one-sided, as Oregon and Gonzaga were almost evenly skilled and focused.

Before the two teams met, Oregon Coach Gerry Gregory admitted that the Gonzaga team, 3-3, would be hard to beat.

"They're tough," Gregory said. "And they're passing.

We're not passing, and we'll have to pass to win."

Pass they did, and Oregon took the first game easily, scoring the last nine points unanswered. The game ended 15-2, but Gonzaga came back strong in the second game, winning it 15-9, to the delight of many Gonzaga fans who trekked to Eugene for the tournament.

After a long and furious bout, Oregon took the third game 15-8. But in the fourth and final game, Gonzaga actually led most of the way before the Ducks ended the game and the match much like they began it, scoring eight unanswered points to win the championship.

Tournament MVP honors went to Oregon's 6-foot-1 Dawnn Charroin. The senior had 12 kills in the championship match.

The Ducks' Mindee Adams and Molly McGrath were also named to the all-tournament team with Charroin.

Charroin was also the MVP in the Portland Invitational the week before, and similarly, Oregon won that tournament as well.

The first day saw the Ducks sweep Baylor and Portland in three games apiece, and wins over Montana and Colorado the next day earned the title for Oregon.

"Offensively, Dawnn and Mindee played very well for us," Gregory said. "We were able to pull ahead in games one and two against Montana, but game three was a see-saw battle."

Again joining Charroin on the all-tournament squad were teammates Adams and McGrath. Charroin was later named Pacific-10 Conference player of the week after hitting .408 with 51 kills during the Portland Invitational.

A home win over Gonzaga Sep. 5 also raised the Ducks' mark.

The next home game pits the Ducks against top-ranked UCLA on Sep. 20 at 7:30 p.m.
